Consultants 'Playing with Idea'

Gaglardi Sees Sea Tube — by 1990

By BARRY JOHNSON

Highways Minister Gaglardi outlined his own plan for one of his favorite dreams Wednesday — a highway in a sunken tube from Point Grey to Gabriola Island.

"I've been talking about this for five or six years," he said. "We'll be able to do it sometime, maybe 25 years from now."

At lunch Wednesday, Dr. Tom Monte of Tanco Engineering Consultants told the minister it was "a good idea, worth looking into." Mr. Gaglardi said. He said his firm would "play around with the idea."

Mr. Gaglardi stressed that the engineering company was "playing around" on its own time and had not been engaged by the government to study the project.

He was commenting on a report from Ottawa that Tom Barnett (NDP, Comox-Alberni) had broached the subject of a causeway over the same route with Transport Minister Pickersgill. Mr. Barnett said Mr. Pickersgill told him the federal government would set up a feasibility study if B.C. would promise to stop building ferries in the interim.

Said Mr. Gaglardi: "Barnett is just looking for headlines."

"And if Pickersgill said that, then he is a national joke." (See below.)

"How can we stop building ferries?" asked the volatile minister. "Are people supposed to get going 500 miles an hour and then leap across the ocean? Maybe we'll shoot them across in rockets."

He said he would be happy to quit building ferries when such a crossing was in existence.

"We are losing thousands of dollars a month on ferries," he said. "With a causeway like this, you build it, pay for it and that's it. With ferries you don't even leave a mark on the ocean."

B.C. may have the population to warrant building his dream tube "in about 25 years," he said. The government hasn't made applications to Ottawa because "it's out of our reach."

The population of Prince Edward Island, he said, is "a mere bagatelle." But that province is getting its causeway to the mainland as a promise made at the time it entered Confederation.

Mr. Gaglardi illustrated the tube on the back of a coffee cheque in the legislature dining room.

Sections of the tube weighing "maybe 100 tons each" would be sunk to a depth of 60 below the surface of the water and anchored there by non-corrosive cables. Positive buoyancy of the tube would exert a steady upward pressure on the cables even when the tube was fully loaded with vehicles. This would hold it stationary.

Grit Caucus Pushes for Pension Hike

Pearson in Squeeze

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson is under pressure, that may soon be unbearable, to raise the old-age pension.

The matter was discussed at the party caucus Wednesday and Mr. Pearson described his dilemma: It is a question of:

● If pensions should be raised across the board or just on the basis of need.

● And when such action should be taken.

Mr. Pearson was airing the subject to head off the emotional buildup among Liberal MPs coming back from their constituencies and reporting what old-age pensioners are asking them:

"Why won't you raise the pension?"

The prime minister recommended all members of the caucus to read the report, just issued, of Senator David Croll's committee on aging.

This committee urges a guaranteed minimum income for all Canadians at 65 of $105 a month for single people and $125 for married couples.

Under this scheme, the government would pay the difference between these levels and actual income.

Mr. Pearson expressed great admiration for the report.

The strategists in the party see a large black mark with the public in the anti-increase position they took in non-confidence votes last month.

The minority government scraped through two votes that

If Mine Dumps Into Buttle

'Murky Water But No Peril'

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Western Mines Ltd. wants to dump the fine tailings from its mine into Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park, a special legislative committee was told Wednesday.

C. M. Campbell, general manager of the mining company, said this material "may make the water a little murky but won't contaminate it," if it is piped to a proper depth in the lake.

He told the committee where his company would like to build a mining town inside the park, and said it was important for the committee to "set the ground rules" for mining operations in the park because other companies would probably make similar requests.

LYNX CLAIMS

"Proven ore reserves now exceed 3,000,000 tons with a gross value of over $100,000,000, and will keep the mine in operation something in excess of six years," said Mr. Campbell.

These reserves are in the Lynx claims, according to Dr. Douglas Campbell, a consulting geologist, who told the legislative committee that deposits "probably triple this reserve" are expected to be found when exploration work is carried out on the firm's Paramount claims.

30-YEAR LIFE

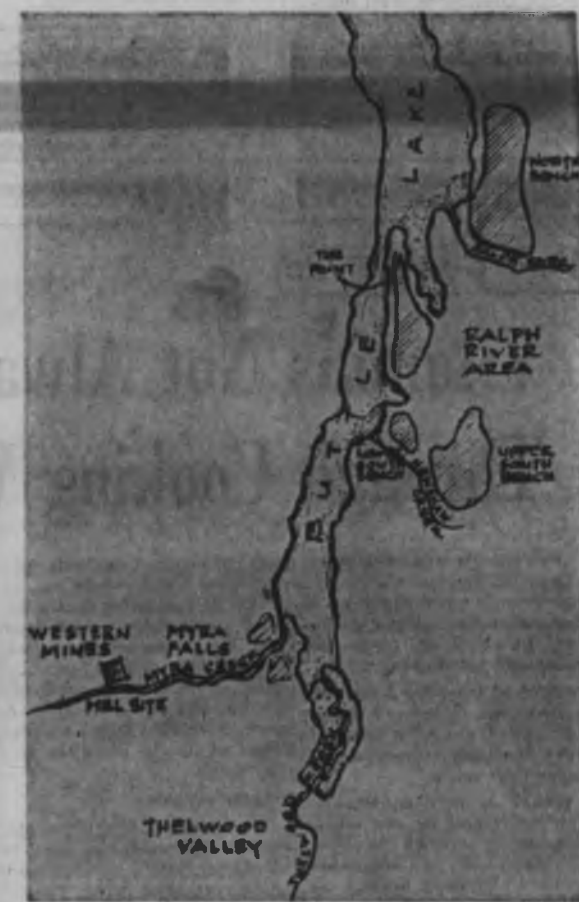

The geologist said he expects the life of the mining operation will be "at least 30 years. It could be much more — we've barely scratched the surface."

Company officials said they plan to finance the construction of "up to 200 homes" which would be rented to 250 permanent employees.

RAZE COMMUNITY

"There would be no permanence of tenure, maintenance would be a company responsibility," said the general manager, and when the mine is ultimately worked out the community could be razed and left for nature to take over.

Mr. Campbell said the company would need 180 acres for

Ottawa Will Listen To Any Request

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

If British Columbia asks for a causeway or tunnel connection for the Island and Mainland, it will be considered by Ottawa, according to Transport Minister Jack Pickersgill.

"We will certainly not turn a deaf ear," Mr. Pickersgill said in a telephone interview from his home in Ottawa Wednesday night.

Mr. Pickersgill said a causeway to connect Island Newfoundland with mainland Newfoundland (Labrador) would probably have preference.

"This is because the island portion of Newfoundland has a much higher population than Vancouver Island," the transport minister explained.

"Until now, the federal government has given this matter (the Vancouver Island link) no consideration whatever," he said.

"That does not mean the matter will not be considered," he quickly added.

He said "I think the problems involved would be considerable."

"I am not an expert."

"But it is my understanding that Georgia Strait is very deep in some places. I think this would cause difficulties."

He said there is no doubt if the provincial government wanted Ottawa to consider the matter, the matter would be considered.

He said this might include a joint study.

Thompson's Ward 'Tired of Being Beggar'

Royal Drop-Out Charges Bias

OTTAWA (CP)—A 17-year-old Ethiopian prince has become a drop-out from staid Ashbury College, charging discrimination and ill treatment.

The charges were denied Wednesday by both the school's headmaster and the prince's Canadian guardian, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson.

They spoke of the youth's desire to be treated like a prince, disciplinary difficulties, and troubles he had managing pocket money while all his school expenses were paid.

Prince Michael Makonnen, grandson of Emperor Haile Selassie, quit the school at Christmas after more than two years there, saying he was "tired of being a beggar."

Ashbury College is a private boys' school, fashioned after England's most exclusive schools.

Ronald H. Perry the headmaster, said he was disturbed by Prince Michael's claims he was discriminated against as an African.

"Most upsetting," said Mr. Perry. "Utterly fictitious and incorrect. We have had many colored students at this school. Discrimination is not in my vocabulary."

Mr. Thompson—who at one time was an educational adviser to the Ethiopian emperor—said the prince's claims were false.

The Social Credit leader had recommended Ashbury College for the prince and others in the royal family if they wanted a Canadian education.

The prince had "left Ottawa and my guardianship without my authorization or other permission."

He did not return to Ashbury after the Christmas holiday, but lived with the parents of a fellow student in Montreal and went to a public school there until he was escorted by a palace official from Addis Ababa to a Swiss school.

"We treated him as we treated all other students," Mr. Perry said.

Viet Nam Peace Talks Aim of World Churches

GENEVA (AP) — The World Council of Churches has thrown its prestige and influence behind a negotiated solution in Viet Nam. As one step it urged a halt to U.S. bombings of North Viet Nam.

In the name of 214 member churches throughout the world, the council Wednesday described any military effort in Viet Nam as futile in the solution of political and economic problems.

A far-reaching resolution by the council's policy-making central committee called for peace negotiations that would include the Viet Cong guerrillas as representative of parts of South Viet Nam.

It appealed to North Viet Nam to stop its infiltration of the south to facilitate peace. It called for a place for Communist China "in the world community of nations."

The resolution requested a ceasefire "to serve as a cooling off period" to test possibilities of negotiations.

SHOWED CONCERN

It was a sweeping document produced by an influential body of Protestant, Anglican, Orthodox and Old Catholic churches in more than 80 countries including Canada. The council has been showing increasing concern about events in Viet Nam and the world-situation in general.

A major item in the resolution asked the U.S. to "review and modify its policy of containment of communism" and suggested that Communist countries stop supporting revolutionary wars to relieve international tension.

An American effort to delete this point as well as the one dealing with China was voted down by the committee.

Peace Vow By Rusk

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Wednesday the United States "cannot see this world start down the slippery road toward war" in Viet Nam or elsewhere despite national reluctance to use its "almost unbelievable power."

"We want peace. We do not want to throw our weight around," Rusk said.

Departing from prepared remarks before the National Rural Electric Co-operative Association, Rusk said U.S. officials "need your prayers and not your imprecations."

Un-world-shaking events that happened in 1883.

"Margo, daughter of H. Abney, the well-known livery stable keeper, and J. L. 'Jack' Clifford, raconteur, have eloped. Margo, it is said, was engaged to marry J. Baker, a Toronto barrister, but met Clifford and surrendered to his superior charms."

Also in 1883, Seagram's 83 was introduced to Canada and that caused a great deal of no excitement.

Somebody at the House of Seagram who owns a pencil and is also pretty fair at arithmetic did some figuring and discovered that this year is the 83rd birthday of Seagram's 83 whisky.

If this world-shaking news doesn't thrill you, maybe the taste of 83 will. That taste didn't thrill Canadians in 1883. This whisky was much too easy tasting, and the people of that time wanted harsh whisky that burned all the way down.

Time passed, and people started clamoring for whisky that was smoother, more gentle. And a lot of unsold 83 was around to meet the demand.

So 83, the unwanted, became 83, the very much wanted.

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese troops uncovered an underground Viet Cong headquarters Wednesday about 65 miles south of Saigon and captured tons of ammunition and supplies, including Communist Chinese and Russian medicine.

A government spokesman said soldiers of the Vietnamese Seventh Infantry Division found three caves in a region where low sand dunes rise out of gloomy mangrove swamps.

About 1,000 yards away, a patrol found a camouflaged Viet Cong field hospital complete with a laboratory and two tons of hospital equipment.

The caves yielded 47,300 rounds of ammunition, 550 anti-tank grenades and 55 land mines.

Vietnamese troops also figured in the latest major land fighting when two battalions of regular government soldiers — more than 1,000 men — clashed with a Viet Cong force of up to 800 men in an area 13 miles north of Ban We Thout, about 160 miles northeast of Saigon.

Low-Flying Plane Crashes

Fliers Flee Cuba

NAPLES, Fla. (UPI) — A light plane carrying three Cuban defectors flew undetected through the United States intracate air defence command radar network Wednesday and crash-landed at this Florida gulf coast resort, killing the pilot.

A spokesman at the Air Defence Command headquarters in Montgomery, Ala., said the small plane made the flight from Havana at an altitude of approximately 50 feet and was to low to be picked up on radar screens.

The dead man was identified as a 25-year-old Rafael Herrera, according to the hospital. A spokesman said he died in the emergency room at 10:06 a.m. EST, about two and one half hours after the crash-landing.

OVERSHOT ROAD

Collier county sheriff Doug Hendry said the dark gray single engine aircraft, with the Cuban markings "CUN 873", apparently attempted to make a landing on his Tamiami Trail — U.S. Highway 41 through the Everglades—but overshot it and crash-stopped alongside it about 7:30 a.m.

The plane landed in some woods right off the end of a street in a new subdivision," the sheriff said. "There was one house on the street, but the plane missed that by far."

PLANE SMASHED

"The plane was completely smashed. It went in almost nose first after the pilot tried to pull up at the last minute to miss some electric wires and hit the top of two trees," the sheriff added.

Hendry described the three Cubans as "defectors" from the Fidel Castro regime but could give no details about them. He said they were not wearing uniforms. Unconfirmed reports said they were engineers or mechanics at the Havana airport.

The man with the leg lacerations was listed by the Hospital as Luis Moro. The name of the third man was listed as Fidel Elrofolor.

Moro and Herrera were taken to the emergency room of the hospital after the crash-landing while the third man was taken to the sheriff's department.

Immigration and other U.S. officials were participating in the interrogation of the Cubans.

The Rake's Progress

THE HOUSE of Commons is rightly expressing alarm that the expenditures of the federal government in the forthcoming year will amount to nearly $10,000,000,000. This is equal to $500 per man, woman and child in the country, and is also more than 25 per cent of the anticipated Gross National Product.

This is alarming enough in itself but it does not take into consideration the spending of the provincial and municipal governments, nor does it include allowances for the Canada Pension Plan— from which payments will start in January 1967— nor does it include the many other social welfare schemes such as medicare that are now being prepared for legislation.

Thoroughly alarmed, the leaders of the Opposition parties are rising up in arms against the government's proposals.

Mr. John Diefenbaker, not very helpfully, describes it as a squander-mania festival, although it is hard to see how he can make such a charge with any sincerity as only a couple of weeks ago he tried to bring down the government by seeking an increase from $75 to $100 a month in old age security payments.

Mr. Robert Thompson of the Socreds, who can probably speak more forthrightly than other political leaders because he has no chance of forming a government anyway, says that when all forms of Canadian taxation are added together they come to nearly 50 per cent of the country's net earnings. His party at least opposed the increase in the old age security payment.

Meantime the Canadian Labor Congress whose members are the main beneficiaries from social welfare schemes have declined Mr. Pearson's plea that they should hold the line on wages as an anti-inflationary measure.

The CLC takes the view that if its members are going to pay more in taxes to meet all the social welfare and other government extravaganzas, its members are entitled to higher wages to meet these requirements.

This surely is the Rake's Progress to which there can be only one ending. If it goes on too long and Canada becomes too involved there will be no one left to provide the fatted calf when the prodigal eventually comes home.

Mr. Allyn Taylor, president of Canada Trust, and one of Canada's most thoughtful economists, said last week that only a fraction of the over-all cost of the government's various social and welfare beneficence can be raised by taxation.

Canada is a fast-growing country, but its speed of growth is limited to international and other considerations. Its ability to prosper depends on the political climate and if taxation is allowed to run out of hand, as it is threatening to do, its free enterprise system will have failed.

Mr. Taylor is surely moderate and wise in counselling that there should be no mad rush to introduce social schemes but that they should be developed gradually so that the burden of cost will not fall on the economy in one crushing blow.

No one will deny that social reform is a must in any progressive country, but it should be geared to the ability to pay.

Criticism Overdone

THE BENNETT government would have been beyond reproach if it had accepted the Angus commission's recommendations on changing the provincial electoral map in their entirety. Only in this way could the redistribution have been seen as completely free of partisan manipulation.

But it is a ridiculous exaggeration to say, as has the Oak Bay Liberal M.L.A., Mr. Alan Macfarlane, that Premier Bennett has taken a perfectly good report and "cut it to shreds." The Liberal leader, Mr. Ray Perrault, no less overdoes his criticism.

In the government's bill there are only two significant departures from the commission's proposals. Instead of reducing by two the number of constituencies in northern B.C., two more seats would be added to the Assembly. And Vancouver and Victoria would have two-member ridings.

For the first of these alterations the premier offers a plausible enough reason: that in the fast-developing north this is not the time to reduce representation. If his asserted motivation for the other—that he doesn't want "little ward systems"—is less convincing, this is because it fits too neatly with the coat-tail theory: that other government candidates ride in with cabinet members, running as teams.

It is to be noted, however, that three seats held by Social Credit will be eliminated if the bill passes, as well as three held by Opposition M.L.A.s, and also that in the north a New Democrat represents one of the ridings that would have been affected had the number been reduced from seven to five.

This hardly looks like the ruthless political opportunism that Mr. Perrault purports to observe.

The Heretics

THE HARSH prison sentences against two Russian writers handed down by the Russian Supreme Court were far more damaging to the prestige and character of the nation than the literary works themselves.

Andrei Sinyavsky and Yuli Daniel were sentenced to seven and five years at hard labor respectively for daring to condemn the Soviet system as one tolerating brutality and corruption.

Both men had pleaded that their profession entitled them to artistic freedom of expression, and they were, it seems, still sufficiently defiant to refuse to plead guilty to the charge of spreading anti-Soviet propaganda.

It is significant that in a country relatively newly-born of revolution a reformer has no security. It is a sign that the state itself is basically insecure. The harsh reaction to criticism which has marked the record of Russian authority since the revolution would seem to contradict the very idealism upon which freedom of and rule by the proletariat was to be founded. The treatment of these two writers by the Russian court is reminiscent of the injustice prevalent under the czars and the very thing against which a desperate population rose in fury.

It is reasonable to suspect that the crime lay not so much in the criticism of authority but the treasonable export of these opinions for publication abroad.

The heretic has no place in the Communist society.

Liberal Dependence on Quebec

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

EVER wondered why Prime Minister Pearson's government always seems to bend so far over backward in accommodating Quebec as to risk falling flat on its spine in the rest of the country?

Think about it in terms of elections in the last 50 years, and the answer is obvious.

Without Quebec, the federal Liberal Party would be dead.

Well, perhaps—except that it's the way the statistical record of federal elections reads over the last half century.

There have been 15 of them. The Parliamentary Guide, pages 447 through 452, shows that in nine of those elections, the Liberals drew roughly 50 per cent—often a great deal more—of their total national strength from Quebec.

In three of them the Liberals, massively rejected by most of English Canada, were driven back to confinement pretty well restricted to their Quebec power base.

And if you count in the French-Canadian constituencies of eastern Ontario, northern New Brunswick and Manitoba, then it becomes even more of a statistical fact that the Liberals are wholly dependent on Quebec.

No wonder then that Jean Lesage and Rene Levesque can write their own federal ticket for La Belle Province.

The federal elections in which Quebec gave the Liberals at least half their total national vote came in 1917, '21, '25, '26, '30, '45, '57, '58 and '65.

And the three elections out of which they emerged as little more than a Quebec party—definitely a French-Canadian party if you include the French-dominated constituencies of eastern Ontario—were in 1917, '58 and again last year.

These three, when the Quebec crunch came, are the interesting ones.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

The last local resistance to Louis Riel's Métis government of Manitoba ended 88 years ago today—in 1870—when Major Charles Boulton and his force of 47 men were captured.

The "Canadian party" of settlers which opposed Riel was a small minority and has been identified with the best law-abiding part of the community. This did not mitigate its vehemence and one member, Thomas Scott, was shot two weeks later when he refused either to leave the province or submit to Riel's government. At the time, the Hudson's Bay Company's sovereignty had expired and negotiations for union with Canada were incomplete.

1821—Miles Standish was put in charge of the Pilgrim's militia at Plymouth, Mass.

First World War: Fifty years ago today—in 1915—the Russian advance on Trebizond reached a point 75 miles northwest of Erzurum; Turkish aircraft bombed the besieged British at Kut-el-Amara; the German and Austrian consuls at Athens were arrested.

Second World War: Twenty years ago today—in 1946—Bulgaria and Turkey signed a non-aggression pact; Brighton, England, rehearsed defences against gas attack; Prime Minister Mackenzie King warned of the dangers of Japan's entering the war.

From the Scriptures

Then Peter said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: But in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. — The Acts 10:34-35.

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

The election of '17 was on the conscription issue and 62 of the 82 seats Sir Wilfrid Laurier managed to salvage from the party wreckage came from Quebec.

From the rest of the country they got only eight from Ontario—the French counties of the east accounting for most of them—four each from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, two from Prince Edward Island, one each from Manitoba and Alberta, and none from Saskatchewan, British Columbia or the Yukon.

In short, they were driven back to their Quebec power base where they were still pretty well confined to the '21 election, getting more than half their seats from Quebec and still only four from west of the Lakeshead.

In '58, they were locked even tighter into Quebec which gave them 25 of their 48 seats, with none from Nova Scotia, P.E.I., Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Once again it was demonstrated beyond all doubt that without Quebec the Liberal Party was nothing, and that if it was to survive and come back to power it had to be held no matter what the price paid.

The scare that the fire-eater, Real Caouette, gave them in the '62 election when he took 26 of Quebec's seats to their 38—thereby saving the minority Diefenbaker Conservatives from what would have been certain defeat—really brought home to the shaken Liberals the political elementary prudence for the United States to fasten attention on Hanoi rather than Peking.

But that is no longer being done. In private briefings and in public statements alike, the accusing finger is being pointed at Peking.

The Chinese reaction is not hard to predict. The men in Peking will dismiss all this talk in Washington as mere words and proceed with more firmness to carry out their own military plans. Or else they will think the United States is really thinking in terms of a war against China, and their only response, given American air supremacy and nuclear power, will be to compel the United States to fight a vast land war in Asia, not only in South Viet Nam but in Korea and other countries. Either way the United States is following a course filled with hazards and difficulties.

Few would have dared to predict eighteen months ago that we would be talking about China almost as much as we do about North Viet Nam in assessing blame for the struggle in Viet Nam. Are we trying to sweeten this bitter war by appealing to old hatreds against China? That is surely the most dangerous gamble of all, and it should be stopped before it is too late.

These lessons of power are tending to be forgotten as the struggle in Viet Nam catches the United States more deeply in its toils. By its own choice the United States in the past few months has begun to hold China, with North Viet Nam, accountable for the aggression and subversion in South Viet Nam. This political escalation is more dangerous than the military escalation. The United States cannot profit from a bligier war that involves more active participation by China. It seems the most dangerous gamble of all, and it should be stopped before it is too late.

Abuse of Language

THE charge made by Mr. Pelletier against the English-speaking people everywhere of provincialism and your excellent editorial on it raises a basic issue of overwhelming importance today. This is the practice of applying a word to something other than that for which it was intended.

I presume that communication between people depends on all parties being in agreement on the meaning of the words they use; otherwise all discussion is futile. That lies at the root of most of our disputes with the Communist world.

Words like "freedom," "democracy," "peace" are used in a sense frequently the direct opposite to that ordinarily attached to them. This may seem unimportant, yet it has been the cause of complete misunderstanding of Russian purposes and in the case of individuals, of tragic disillusionment when they discover that the Russian authorities did not mean what they thought they did.

To apply the word "provincialism" to the views of the English-speaking Canadians who resist the parochialism of French-speaking Quebec would be laughable were it not that many unthinking persons may be taken in by this abuse of language.

The Greek historian, Thucydides, speaking of the bloody civil wars of his day, said of some of the participants, "They changed the ordinary meaning of words in order to justify their own acts." Apparently this corruption of language is just as effective an instrument in the 20th century AD as in the 5th century BC.

U.S. Bombing

When Max Freedman was with the Winnipeg Free Press I always enjoyed his articles. However since his transfer to Washington there has been a complete change in his outlook. Apparently he has been thoroughly brainwashed.

He champions U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam without taking into consideration the important fact that the U.S. has no business in that wretched country and if the U.S. and its stooge Diem had carried out the conditions of the Geneva Conference Viet Nam would have been spared the present blood-bath.

Freedman in his article "U.S. bombing vital to victory" is apparently worried about American losses if the war is decided in ground fighting but he appears to have no thought or regard for the wretched women and children being slaughtered in the indiscriminate U.S. bombing to say nothing of the destruction of the sources of food and innocent villagers.

Of course those of us who disagree are either Communists or follow the Communist line. At least we are in good company including our own Tory M.P. Terry Nugent of Edmonton-Strathcona, Senators Morse, Mansfield, Fulbright and others.

able U.S. correspondents Waller Lippman and James Reston, George Kennan and countless other able and patriotic Americans.

There is little doubt that the U.S. president has altogether too much power when he can wage an undeclared war and his chief advisers Rusk and McNamara are, in my opinion, very dangerous men.

Progress

In early days captives were paraded as evidence of victory in war. That practice went out as man became more civilized. Now, we see pictures of a dead Viet Cong draped across the hood of a jeep, displayed as "the trophy of one day's hunt" by the smiling soldiers of the nation which is looked upon as the leader of the western world.

THIS is progress?

I have not had the honor to at once malign and pathetic disappeared from the American scene. Yet there was one last little drama to be enacted that had the Gods of Irony grinning with bitter delight.

The remains of Michael Quill could not be taken to their final resting place in a hearse. The drivers were on strike.

The body was finally carried away on a station wagon—but only on terms.

The driver, under strict orders from his union, was allowed to drive the vehicle and take the deceased away only provided he did not accept any pay.

The ultimate wry laugh was yet to come.

When the corpse was finally delivered according to the rules at the funeral service, some of the mourners were questioned. Trade union officials demanded to see their membership cards before they were admitted to the church.

I only hope that St. Peter did not exclude Michael Quill from Paradise on the ground that it is a closed shop.

That was a remarkable piece of picture-snatching Sir Bernard Lovell and his boys pulled off against the Soviet Union when they pinched those marvellous moon pictures.

At a cost of billions of roubles and untold research the Russians gently landed their cameras on the Ocean of Storms and within a few hours Sir Bernard, the celestial highwayman, was calmly counting and displaying his precious loot at Jodrell Bank.

We saw the wonderful photographs long before the Russian people did, and no wonder Moscow is annoyed at this breathtaking piece of plunder.

Fortunately the lawyers have not yet arrived on the moon, but had they been there a writ for breach of lunar copyright would certainly have been served on Sir Bernard.

Has Johnson Too Much Power?

By CARL T. ROWAN, from Washington

Should the president have so much power that his moods, his whims, become the determining factor on great matters of war and peace?

That, put bluntly, is the question over which a thoughtful part of this city is agonizing today.

There are lots of sober, responsible people here, Democrats and Republicans, who believe that this president—this Lyndon Baines Johnson—has arrogated unto himself too much power. They believe that he has surrounded himself with so many "Well, uh, OK" men that his power endangers the republic.

The basic question of the soundness of his foreign policy decisions gets lost in emotional reactions to his personal idiosyncrasies.

That Johnson runs virtually a one-man show is not news to anyone. He is one of the strongest executives ever to reside in the White House; this fact is evident in the way he secured speedy congressional approval of legislation that the late President Kennedy, for all his charm and world-wide appeal, could never have gotten passed.

They are saying here that LBJ at his best is a man of vision, but at his worst is terribly egocentric and rashly impulsive; faced with dissent or disagreement he may become haughtily sarcastic in front of the dissenter and close to slanderous in speaking of him to others. And too many people feel that LBJ at his worst is making the foreign policy decisions these days.

How can this be a fair criticism of a man who held dozens of meetings with almost everyone in sight before deciding eight months ago to raise the U.S. troop level in Viet Nam to 125,000? And he did the same before the recent decision to resume bombing North Viet Nam.

The worried people here say that all these meetings were largely exercises in trying to manipulate a consensus for what the president already had decided to do. Some congressional leaders say that the meetings are used largely for LBJ to pull the puppet strings and set off a spate by a contingent of Cabinet and other officers whose task is to make LBJ's preferred course of action appear to be the only one of reason, prudence and patriotism.

Some congressmen, and even LBJ's key aides, are recalling the petulant mood he assumed in the early days of the Dominican Republic crisis. Some tell how dumbfounded they were to hear him remark that his intelligence people show him criticisms of the United States made in Peking or Hanoi on one day and "a couple days later that same criticism is being made in Congress or in the press."

That was pretty close to declaring some insidious link between enemies and American press and congressional critics of the administration. How much, the critics ask, did a mood of this kind influence the president to believe every report he got about the degree of Communist influence in the Dominican Republic and the need for him to send in more and more U.S. troops?

A Honolulu conference that might have been of vital importance in now the subject of doubts and suspicions all over the country.

This is regrettable, but the president's moods and whims are again to blame.

Most newsmen of consequence have heard so many disparaging references to Sen. J. William Fulbright by Johnson that it was second nature for the press to assume that the Honolulu meeting was decided primarily to sabotage the Fulbright committee's hearings on Viet Nam.

So the nation gets the picture of a president moving impulsively, and out of personal pique, to call a conference and take foreign policy steps that are of the gravest concern to every one.

Presidents don't like to have their hands tied by Congress on foreign policy matters. They shouldn't be hamstringed. But Congress and the nation have a right to feel that more than one man's varying judgment goes into decisions that mean life-or-death for thousands.

Johnson, noted for his political antenna, ought by now to have sensed the mood of Washington and the nation. His troubles may be larger than he thinks.

South Africa Election

Smith's Stand Aids Verwoerd

By RON ANDERSON, from Johannesburg

South Africa's ruling Nationalist Party hopes to deal a death blow to the opposition United Party in the country's general election March 30.

While the Nationalists, who now have 105 seats and a two-thirds majority, are supremely confident they can win up to 130 of the 170 seats in balloting by the all-white electorate of 2,000,000 voters, there are several imponderables such as the Rhodesian situation and the economic state of the country which may affect the outcome.

It will be the United Party's last chance to prove itself a major force and effective opposition. On the face of it, Sir de Villiers Graaff's party has little hope of increasing its present 50 seats in the House of Assembly.

Several seats, once considered "safe" by the United Party, have become marginal.

Then there is the inescapable fact that the Nationalists have gained votes at every election since they swept into power in 1948. They claim, too, that recently there has been a swing of English-speaking voters, who once solidly supported the United Party, to Nationalist ranks.

The Nationalists point continuously to the fact that under their rule South Africa has been the most peaceful country in Africa. This stems in part from Justice Minister John Vorster's sustained and successful campaign against subversive elements, whose leaders are now all in jail or out of the country. There is no longer any sabotage as a protest against the government's controversial apartheid policy.

The factor in the Rhodesian situation which may influence voting is the widespread feeling that Britain has adopted the attitude that the whites in Africa are expendable in pursuit of the policy that the black majority must rule.

Many English-speaking people in South Africa of British extraction are thoroughly disenchanted with Britain and may vote Nationalist as a result. But the Nationalists have some problems. The chief one is now that the Nationalist Africaner has achieved his ideal and his country is now a republic completely divorced from the British Commonwealth, he is showing signs of political apathy.

There is also a trend in the country districts (the main source of Nationalist power) for farmers to criticize the way the government has handled the drought crisis. Although the dry spell, described as the worst in the country this century, has been partially checked by recent rains, the farmers feel they have been neglected.

Many believe that Prime Minister Verwoerd called the election fully a month earlier than expected because he expects Ian Smith's Rhodesian government to collapse soon. If the election is before the collapse, Verwoerd is unlikely to be embarrassed by recriminations from some of his supporters who have advocated he should give more aid to Smith in his struggle with Britain.

One of the main election issues will again be racial. While Verwoerd is prepared to give Africans quite important executive powers in their own bantustans, the United Party favors its own vaguely defined race federation program for black and white groups whereby the two races will work together to govern the country.

Verwoerd's plan is essentially a commonwealth of black and white groups.

Strangely enough, a new party to the right of the Nationalists has sprung up called the Republican Party which considers that Verwoerd is doing too much for the Africans. It is putting up 30 candidates on a platform that the white man must rule at all costs.

The only other party in the list is the Progressive Party which has one seat now and has announced it will contest 40. Appealing more to the "thinking" voter, it advocates a qualified franchise for all races on educational and property qualifications to "keep political power in responsible hands."

Important Oil Finds Help Develop North

By HARRY YOUNG

Union Oil Company of Canada says its two most important oil discoveries in 1965 were in northern B.C.

The annual report just issued to shareholders, says that the discovery wells in the Crush area and in the nearby East Pelee areas led to the development of another 17 wells in which Union has an interest.

Oil production from these wells contributed largely to Union's increased earnings of $3,988,810 ($1 cent) compared with $1,207,862 ($3 cent) in 1964.

In addition, Union in 1965 had a non-recurring profit of $12,087,499 from sale of interest in properties in the Mitsu area of Alberta.

The company is proceeding with the construction of a 7,500 barrels a day oil refinery at Prince George to meet increasing demands for petroleum products in western Canada.

OPTIONED TO CASEX

Rainbow Mines Ltd. has optioned 50 per cent of its Monarch claims in the Pine Point area to Canex Aerial Exploration Ltd. in return for that company's exploration work on the property.

Canex is obligated to make an induced polarization survey on the 40 claim block and then to initiate drilling or other programs as the survey indicates. Canex has up to the end of 1968 to take up the option to put the property into production.

Rainbow acquired the Monarch property for $90,750 plus 432,334 Rainbow shares in escrow. It is in the process of raising new funds by underwriting.

Rainbow also plans this year to do diamond drilling work on two of its copper prospects on Peasey Island.

MINES TO FILMS

A Canadian mining company which recently sold 200,000 shares for $1 and gave options on 400,000 more at prices ranging from $1.50 to $2.50 is moving into the Hollywood TV and movie production business. Ausdom Corporation Ltd. which holds claims in the Porcupine area of Northern Ontario has bought for an undisclosed sum 70 per cent of the 300,000 shares of DTRA.

Pope Makes Announcement

Catholic Food Laws Eased

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pope Paul VI has relaxed fast and abstinence rules for Roman Catholics throughout the world, it was announced here Wednesday.

Mast Falls Before Royal Pair

ST. LUCIA, Windward Islands (AP) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip found a sunny moment here Wednesday when the queen on a carnival float bowed in front of her.

The incident occurred during a pageant at Castries, demonstrating the history of the island of St. Lucia—for more than 200 years the most fought over of Britain's possessions in the Caribbean—which was the highlight of the royal couple's one-day visit here.

ROYAL FACIT

The mast stayed erect, however, and the Queen and Philip continued their program, which had started when they landed at the flower-laden jetty of Soufriere.

The Queen and Philip had sailed in the royal yacht Britannia from Barbados, where they stayed two days on their Caribbean tour.

Bridge Results

Results of the "Masthead" bridge game from weekly games in the winter of 1966 were held Feb. 14 were: 1. John Smith and Tony Marsh, 2. Margaret Smith and Paul Smith, 3. Margaret Smith and Paul Smith, 4. John Smith and Tony Marsh.

The official announcement from the apostolic delegation to the United States said that "full details" of the new regulations will be made public in Rome today.

It said the "major points" of the papal decree will be: ● "The traditional law requiring Catholics to abstain from meat on Fridays remains in effect." However, children under 14 will henceforth be freed from the meatless Friday obligation. Previously it applied to all Catholics above the age of 7.

● The rules of Lenten fasting will be drastically modified. Henceforth Catholics may eat what they please during Lent except on Fridays, when they will be expected to abstain from meat as on all Fridays during the year, and on the two days which mark the beginning and end of the Lenten season. On Ash Wednesday—which falls this year on Feb. 23—and on Good Friday, they are enjoined to practice both fasting and abstinence. This means eating only one full meal, without meat, and two other light snacks, also without meat.

In the past, Lenten rules called for adult Catholics to fast on all of the 40 weekdays of the season. Fasting meant eating only one full meal (which could include meat) plus two other light snacks which together did not amount to a full meal. This requirement applied to persons between 21 and 60.

LOCAL AUTHORITY

Diocesan bishops have long had authority to dispense with or modify the Lenten fasting regulations. In recent years, an increasing number in the U.S. have done so. But more than 90 per cent of America's Catholics remained under the old law of Lenten fasting until Pope Paul's decree.

Although not required to do so, millions of devout Catholics are expected to continue fasting during Lent. The purpose of the new regulations is to put Lenten acts of self-denial on a voluntary rather than a compulsory basis. The church continues to hold that Lent is a penitential season in which voluntary sacrifices of normal pleasures is particularly appropriate.

The change in rules came after many U.S. dioceses had prepared statements for mass distribution at Sunday masses this weekend, reiterating the requirements for fasting and abstinence. At least one major archdiocese, Cincinnati, had already begun sending out the statements when it learned of the new rules. Catholic officials said there is likely to be "wide spread confusion" in many dioceses about the change.

Liberal Collar For Minister?

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Russel Horsburgh, former United Church minister who recently served 107 days in jail, says he is "thinking of returning to some form of liberal ministry."

He said in an interview Tuesday his decision would depend on how "things turn out."

Horsburgh, 47, was sentenced to one year in Guelph reformatory after being convicted of contributing to juvenile delinquency at Chatham's Park Street United Church. He was released on bail last week pending an appeal before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Horsburgh said his counsel, Charles Dublin of Toronto, is attempting to have his case appealed at the spring session of the supreme court.

'Wake Up' to Needs

Health Minister Eric Martin was told Wednesday to "wake up" and loosen provincial purse strings to provide proper child psychiatric services.

Dr. Pat McGeer (L.-Point Grey) accused Mr. Martin in the legislature Wednesday of sitting on plans for a new UBC teaching hospital and for withholding approval of plans for psychiatric services.

"There is no excuse for not expanding the plans to include child psychiatry," he said. "Facilities in this province are among the worst in the country."

He said the government must provide child psychiatric services in conjunction with teaching facilities in universities and hospitals.

"The short-sightedness of a policy which funnels huge amounts into provincial mental health services but starves the training centres cannot be over-emphasized."

MURDERS CITED

He cited "hideous" murders in Vancouver. The murders in both cases were young mentally-disturbed persons.

"I would not be so bold as to suggest that proper psychiatric care and the best child and adolescent psychiatric facilities in the world have avoided these brutal and seemingly senseless events," he admitted. "But I do say that until we develop satisfactory facilities here, we are passing by the only chance we have of avoiding similar circumstances occurring in the future."

SWEDEN WAS FIRST

The first central national bank in the world was that of Sweden, which started issuing paper money on a large scale in 1701.

Tailings No Threat To Lake—Mine Chief

Its community, which would also need a hotel for transient accommodations, a restaurant to eliminate the need for a cook-house, possibly a community hall and a number of stores which would also cater to tourists and campers.

PENINSULA PROJECT

Western Mines would like to have either the north bench on the eastern side of Butte Lake just north of Ralph River, or the peninsula just south of Ralph River which could be developed like the Christie Point Apartments in the Gorge, in Victoria.

The gutted Thelwood Valley near the mine site, still scarred from a lightning forest fire in 1958, was offered by the government as a townsite but rejected by the company because "it is not a fit place for families to live," said Mr. Campbell.

ABSOLUTELY SHOCKING

"If a woman had to live there and look out of her window at the grey spikes and mud flats all day long, the mental attitude which would develop would be absolutely shocking," he told the committee.

Al King of Vancouver, Mines, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union national executive board member for western Canada, told the committee that while he had not seen the Thelwood Valley, he had been advised that "our men wouldn't live there even if a town is established there."

STRENUOUS OCCUPATION

Mining is an "extremely hazardous and strenuous" occupation and the miners don't want to travel long distances to their homes after coming up from the mine, he said.

The geologist also warned the committee of the danger of snow slides in the Thelwood Valley. Flying over the area, he said, "you can see at least four existing avalanches which came down this winter."

MARSH ON FLATS

"There is a spectacular avalanche 1½ miles south of the Thelwood burn," he said, adding that there is "no soil on the side of the Thelwood burn ... and marsh on the flats."

Committee member Harry McKay (L. Fernie), who comes from the coal mining region of southeastern British Columbia, stressed that a tight rein must be held to prevent the company from building a "shack town" for the miners.

STRICT CONTROL

"This business of shack towns cannot be taken lightly; we are spending millions to move them. You know where I live, and company towns have evil connotations ... very strict control would have to be maintained to keep community interest up."

Committee chairman William

Speare (S.C. Cariboo) asked the Western Mines general manager what the company plans to do with its tailings.

"We don't expect any water contamination from the mill ... the only contamination would be the problem of the tailings," said Mr. Campbell.

PUMP INTO MINE

"We will largely pump our tailings back into the mine for fill, but some of this material is fine and doesn't drain easily—it's like quicksand."

"We are going to be shipping so much material that we won't have enough tailings to fill the holes, but there will be some fine material not suitable for bringing back into the mine," he said.

"We are considering putting these tailings into the lake, piping them to a depth below the feeding level of fish and the turbulence level ... but this will be a minimum."

FISH UNHARMED

This system, said Mr. Campbell, had been used successfully in Kootenay Lake without harming the fish.

"Is there any danger of the fluid contaminating the lake?" asked Mr. McKay.

"It may be a little murky but it won't contaminate it. There is no danger at all. I couldn't tell you there is not going to be any murkiness," Mr. Campbell replied.

The mine manager said this

Navy Rescues Liberian Crew

The 28 crew members from the steamer, the White Mountain, were rescued by the navy destroyer Cambrian.

WORK COULD WAIT

The towers of London's Westminster Abbey were not finished until 1745, 200 years after the rest of the building.

Highway Death Accidental

A coroner's jury Wednesday night brought in a verdict of accidental death and attached no blame to the driver of the truck which hit Mrs. Vera Carter Petrie, 65, of 2319 Dolphin, last Friday night.

Mrs. Petrie died when struck by a pickup truck driven by Allan Smith, 6603 Tunstead, as she crossed Patricia Bay Highway after visiting friends.

Mr. Smith said he first saw Mrs. Petrie when she appeared in front of his truck.

John Tiedalle (BC, Saanich) will be the first speaker up during the night sitting.

Labor's Silence Blasted by MLA

By GORDON DODD

Labor was scolded on its home ground Wednesday night for not "raising cane" enough.

The rebuke was administered by New Democrat MLA John Squire, of Port Alberni, who was addressing Victoria Labor Council.

Premier Bennett's budget was something that labor ought to be "very critical about," he said.

COMPENSATION

And the Tyson commission recommendations on workmen's compensation? "I haven't seen one complaint from labor as an organized group," Mr. Squire cried.

He sometimes wondered just where the labor movement was heading in some fields.

Mr. Squire said he found it disturbing not to hear any criticism from labor on the budget speech.

The premier had proclaimed there was "something in it for all" but the MLA doubted whether the sales tax cuts were going to save a lot of money for the low income groups.

While they were at it, labor should ask Mr. Bennett to talk to Ottawa about raising the income tax level for a man and wife from $2,000 to $3,000.

"POOR IMAGE"

"I know that is a federal matter but I don't like to see the government counting off $659,000,000 (estimated 1966-67 revenue) and all we are going to get is cuts in clothing and soft drinks."

"When you and I go into negotiations to get a pay increase, we don't say, 'Please, the cost of living has gone up five points and we want a raise in pay to keep up with the cost of living.' We go in and say our productivity figures are going up and we want a chunk of it."

Ray Eddie, NDP member for New Westminster, and like Mr. Squire an IWA member, said trade unions had a poor public image today and it was due to a failure of their own to advertise themselves sufficiently.

North Ward Hazards Listed

Repair or Vacate—Mayor

Installation of stairway/sprinklers, adjustments to oil furnaces and furnace room repairs are the absolute safety minimums in North Ward School if pupils are to remain there, Mayor Toome said Wednesday in a letter to trustees of Greater Victoria School Board.

In his letter, delivered personally, Mayor Toome said he was not ready to go along with representatives of parents who marched on City Hall recently asking that temporary accommodation be built for the children while a new school was built, but he thought the board should consider their plea.

DEFERRED MONDAY
Following a special meeting of the board of education and city council, to consider the board's $13,000,000 1966 budget, board chairman John Porteous said Wednesday that the mayor's letter would be considered at Monday night's board meeting and that a decision could be expected at that time.

In his letter, Mayor Toome recalled that inspections were carried out on Monday by representatives of city fire and building departments. Detailed statements were forwarded, he said.

1967 EARLIEST
Referring to statements that the city was dragging its feet on urban renewal and so delaying replacement of the rickety old Douglas Street school, Mayor Toome said that even with the utmost haste it was doubtful whether a new school could be built and occupied before September, 1967.

He recalled that he said on Monday that he did not believe it necessary for the board to close the school "if all reasonable precautions were taken."

PATROLS
In addition to the safety precautions mentioned, it would be wise to have the building patrolled at all times, the mayor's letter said.

"I am sure the board of school trustees will be just as concerned about injury or hazard to life of children and teachers as are members of city council and parents, and will take whatever action is required," the letter concluded.

Driver Injured

Mrs. Randi Joan Campbell, of 6729 Grant, escaped with minor cuts when her car struck a pole and fell into a ditch on Sooke Road near Kangaroo Road at about 4 p.m. Wednesday.

Jubilee Royalty Chosen

Three were chosen for coronation March 1 at start of Saanich Diamond Jubilee.—(K. H. Kinman)

Council, Trustees Trade in Aid

The city is willing to give the school board a helping hand and would like the board, in turn, to help the city find some way of easing the educational tax load on the ratepayer, Mayor Toome indicated Wednesday.

Speaking at a joint meeting of city council and the Greater Victoria School Board—called to discuss the board's $13,000,000 1966 budget—the mayor asked how the city could assist passage of the $1,789,404 school construction referendum which will be submitted to the ratepayers March 12 for the second time.

"Well," said Trustee Peter Bunn, "you could tell the owner of the average Victoria Home (worth about $13,000) that the referendum, if passed will cost him about $1.24 a year for 20 years."

Trustee Dr. C. B. Jameson suggested that council pass a resolution approving of the referendum and asking an affirmative vote.

On the other side of the coin, said Trustee W. G. Curran, was the past stand of boards of education which had always advocated that cost of education be raised by some method other than direct taxation on land.

"I think there should be an income tax to spread the burden evenly," Trustee Curran said. Chairman John Porteous, Dr. Jameson and Mr. Bunn agreed.

They also indicated that they were behind the drive of local municipalities for an investigation by the provincial government on cost-sharing and responsibility in the matter of welfare, education and social costs.

New Group's Prime Target

Regional Board Eyes Parkland

By A. H. MURPHY

A workmanlike, no-nonsense and brand new board for the capital district region agreed, Wednesday, to drive ahead in an aggressive program to get its hands on more and more Saanich Peninsula parkland.

A provincial order-in-council authorized the Regional District of the Capital of British Columbia Feb. 1.

Judge Harold Adler administered the oath of office to 14 representatives from seven municipalities and five electoral districts at the board's first meeting Wednesday.

The creation of the eighth regional board in the province culminated more than a year's labor by provincial and municipal people to work the bugs out of a plan conceived by Municipal Affairs Minister Don Campbell and his department a long time ago.

James D. Baird, assistant deputy-minister, said Wednesday four more regional districts are almost ready and three more are in the oven.

Reeve Hugh Curtis and Coun. L. H. Passmore, Saanich.

Reeve Allan Cox, Oak Bay.

Coun. James Bryant, Esquimalt.

Reeve R. Gordon Lee, Central Saanich.

Reeve James B. Cumming, North Saanich.

Commissioner J. E. Boshier, Sidney.

Representatives William Reader, Colwood; John S. Williams, Langford; John E. Martin, Sooke; Albert E. Beasley, View Royal.

Functions Juggled

Functions of the board, which have been juggled and adjusted several times since the original idea was proposed, will be administration of parks, a regional sewerage survey and fire-control control.

The acquisition of parkland got a flying start under the direction of the Capital Region Parks District Board which was set up some time ago to get local government hands on some valuable tracts in the Saanich Peninsula which were in danger of subdivision.

With formation of the capital region board the parks group goes out of existence and the new body takes up the work.

A couple of deals started by the parks board will be ratified by the new group.

An eight-acre subunit at Witby's Lagoon will be grabbed and a strong effort made to get additional adjacent property.

North Hill, on the top of the peninsula will be acquired and it is hoped that the department of recreation and conservation will chip in with another 55 acres it owns in the area.

Funds from Taxes

Other properties mentioned were at Deep Cove, Cole Bay, Patricia Bay, Henderson Point, Island View Beach, Bear Hill, Gordon Head, Weir's Beach, Triangle Hill and in the Highlands.

The board will have about $200,000 a year to spend. The money will be derived from levies of one-half mill on the tax rate of four municipalities ($118,600) and contributions from the provincial government.

"I think we should adopt a policy, old-fashioned though it may sound, of acquiring these properties now with the idea of improving them later," said Reeve Allan Cox.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell agreed. "Get options on them buy them or reserve them but get them," he said.

All members agreed that within their limited budget every effort should be made to get a foothold. It was suggested that there were many other pieces of land on the peninsula which should be acquired.

Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich was elected chairman of the board with Reeve James B. Cumming, of North Saanich as his deputy.

Grant Fight To Continue

Victoria Labor Council was urged Wednesday night to continue pressing city council to abandon its annual grant to the local Chamber of Commerce.

The labor body had demanded the cutting off of the money in a resolution adopted at its last meeting. Although it refused on a per capita basis, the city voted to continue the $2,500 grant.

Delegate John Schibill said the labor council should renew its demand next year.

Clothing, Footwear

Tax for Under-15s Will End March 1

The five per cent sales tax on clothing and footwear for children under 15 years of age will be removed on March 1.

Premier Bennett announced in his budget speech last week that the tax would be lifted on these items, along with meals, confections, candies, soft drinks, newspapers, magazines and school supplies.

A provincial cabinet order-in-council stated Wednesday that the children's clothing and footwear category would be freed of the tax on March 1.

Finance department officials said this was possible because the Social Services Act contains a regulation which can be altered by cabinet order.

But the tax on the other items cannot be lifted until royal assent is given to a bill now before the legislature, because these changes will require an amendment of the act.

Accused Youth Remanded Again

A 16-year-old youth, charged with juvenile delinquency, "with wit, capital murder," was remanded in juvenile court Wednesday to Feb. 24.

The charge followed the slaying Feb. 10 of seven-year-old Linda Crocker whose body was found a quarter-mile from her Brentwood home.

No plea has yet been taken from the youth. He had been remanded last Friday.

McGeer Slaps PGE Shares

Pat McGeer (L-Point Grey) said the government should have sold outstanding PGE shares to the federal government instead of buying them itself.

This would put the province in a good position for receiving federal aid to offset the railroad's losses, he said.

The province recently bought $25,000,000 worth of unissued PGE shares.

Tree Tangle Sparks Road Wrangle

By JERRY BOULTREE

Is it Terrace Avenue or Terrace Lane? Is it a public thoroughfare or a private path?

Residents on either side of whatever it is are quick to claim the road is privately owned.

As one resident put it: "The public use the road because we allow them to."

John Graeme of 990 Terrace, one of the chief spokesmen in the dispute which has raged back and forth for considerable time between city officials and the owners, said the road is owned by three people—himself, his next-door neighbor, Hugh J. Graham, and Mrs. Halburton Weldon across the street.

Mrs. Weldon said the roadway had been driven through the property by her uncle in 1913. All the property on which the present homes stand was once owned by her family, she said.

City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady said Wednesday night that he believed part of the road was privately owned, but that property open to the public tended to revert to public ownership. He said that if any dispute arose, it would call for deep investigation.

The dispute has flared recently over two trees which grew by the side of the road, one belonging to Mrs. Weldon, the other to Mr. Graham. They stand on opposite sides of the road and are so close together that only one vehicle can get through at a time.

Five department officials have complained that the trees have to come out to allow their trucks to pass with ease.

But, said Mrs. G. B. Bigelow, at 995:

"The fire trucks are not really a problem. We had a fire here a short time ago, and the firemen simply connected their hoses to the hydrant outside on the road."

There are, in fact, two hydrants on Terrace Avenue (the city's appellation). From either one, the area in dispute can easily be reached. There is no need for the trucks to run the full length of the road between the trees.

At least, that's what Mr. Graeme, Mr. Graham and Mrs. Weldon think.

"They (the trucks) can come in from either Oak Bay or Rockland," Mrs. Graeme said.

Works engineer for Esquimalt, Mr. Graeme said he's "building roads all the time," and improving the road outside his home would only speed up traffic.

"And the grades of the hill won't bear any faster traffic. I'm glad. It's much better for our children," he said. All residents say one of the charms of living on the hill is that it is so rural in atmosphere.

"But now we get tourists by the carload," said Mrs. Graham.

"And those people on their motorcycles and speed cars," said Miss Gladys Irving, Mrs. Weldon's sister, who lives at the same residence.

Mr. Graeme had the clincher:

"The three of us who own that road pay taxes on two lots—our homes, and the road."

"I'll not let the city have my portion of the road. And it would be a shame, I think, for those trees to be cut down. There's just no need."

Gee, Mr. Hees, I'd sure like to help you out, but I can't.

It's not the expense or anything. I've got the stamp right here. But writing letters to protest U.S. takeover of Canadian hockey is like joining the Confederate army. The battle was over years ago.

It's certainly nice to know the politicians care about us hockey fans. We're in trouble, all right. The whole game of hockey is going to crumble and die if we let it fall into the hands of the nasty old Americans.

I've just got one teeny little question. How do we keep them from taking something they've controlled for 40 years?

They've won, Mr. Hees. If the question of hockey national form is based only on number of teams, they won in 1925, when the NHL expanded to a 10-team league. Four of those teams were Canadian, six American, and Canada has never caught up.

Oh, it's worse now, of course. Six new American franchises give the U.S. a 10-2 edge in teams. But if you'll pardon me for saying so, sir, it took a heck of a time for you guys to find out we were losing.

Born All-Canadian

Maybe you should study a little history. If you do, you'll find that the NHL was formed in 1917, and that first season there were four teams—Montreal Canadiens, Montreal Wanderers, Ottawa and Toronto Arenas. They played a 22-game schedule.

It was all Canadian then, sir. You'd have been proud. But in 1924 those Yanks started hornin' in.

Boston Bruins were the first U.S. team in and now, after various franchise shifts, the league roster reads Hamilton Tigers, Montreal Canadiens, Montreal Maroons, Ottawa, Toronto St. Patricks and the Bruins.

That was where the politicians should have stepped in, sir. We'd have stopped the bouncers then. Two years later, it was too late.

In 1925 the Hamilton franchise was sold to New York Americans for $75,000 (Unheard of price, that, but you know these Americans. Filthy rich), and Pittsburgh Pirates got a franchise. Now there were seven clubs, four Canadian, three American.

The next year in came New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks, and Detroit Cougars (later the Red Wings). And now it was a league of two five-team divisions, but six U.S. teams to four Canadian. (That was the year, incidentally, that the Stanley Cup, originally put up in 1893 for the AMATEUR championship of Canadian hockey, was turned over to the NHL.) From there, it was just a matter of whittling away at the Canadian teams. Ottawa was out, back in, and out again, the franchise shifted to St. Louis. Pittsburgh's franchise went to Philadelphia, where it folded.

Pay in Yankee Dollars

St. Louis was gone in 1935, the Maroons in 1938, the New York (by then Brooklyn) Americans in 1942, and there we were—right where we are today—with teams in Montreal, Toronto, Detroit, Chicago, New York and Boston.

Of course, when expansion comes in 1967-68, the spread will be a little overwhelming. Ten teams against two is a bit much, isn't it?

But the players on those 12 teams will still be 99 per cent Canadian, and I don't think it will be too much of a blow for those on U.S. teams to collect their pay in American currency.

No, Mr. Hees, I don't like it, either. But hockey is a business and the men who run it (Americans, most of them) are putting their franchisees where the money is.

Yes, Vancouver got a dirty deal. But it didn't figure to get a franchise anyway, because there is no extra TV exposure to be gained by it. And TV money is the key to the whole expansion.

For a few years at least, Vancouver will have to be content with staying in the WHL, which now stands for Western Hockey League.

As to the only losing its national game—well, the Americans aren't the only ones beating us at our own game. In 10 years European and Russian teams will be as good as any in Canada or the United States, and it won't be a disaster then any more than it is now.

We invented the game; we didn't patent it.

Chinooks Face Dilemma

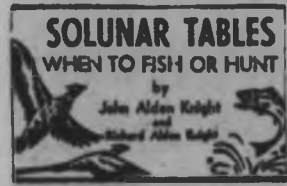

'Batman' Defence Key To Jayvees' Success

Ollie Goldsmith is not given to pushing panic buttons. In fact, the only thing he's pushing right now is his Victoria Chinooks.

"I'm going to shake things up, you can bet on that," he said as he prepared his club to meet UBC Jayvees Friday at 8:30.

at Central Junior High School. "We're not that far from beating those guys."

Jayvees stunned Chinooks on the weekend in Vancouver, whipping them twice, 65-44, and 53-29, in the first two games of their best-of-five B.C. junior men's basketball final. They were the two worst beatings in the club's three-year history.

"But we've got them on our floor now," Goldsmith said. "And on the season we're 2-2 against each other. It's not over yet."

TO FORWARD
One of the moves Goldsmith will probably make is to take Ron Bowker out of the middle, switching him to forward and replacing him with Brian Brunwell.

Purpose is two-fold. First, Bowker is a better forward than he is a pivot man, and the move may help him break a long scoring slump. Second, he sells good blocks, and may be able to shake scoring champion Ken Jackson loose from the persistent checking of UBC's Bob Molnaki.

TO DEFENCE
Molnaki, a forward moved to guard just to stop Jackson, held him to four points in each game in what coach Norm Watt calls his Batman Defence ("It stands for Molnaki's initials, and because the boys wanted me to quit calling Tuesday practices so they could watch Batman on TV.")

"I think we can figure a way to beat them," Goldsmith said. "We've got one more workout to do it."

If Chinooks win Friday, the fourth game will be played here Saturday night.

Basketball

Pat McGee (L. Point Grey) said Canadian governments should show more interest in athletics, and called for a royal commission to "break the grip which a few sinister and powerful promoters have over both professional and amateur hockey."

The promoters have turned Canada into a "gold coast" in which to operate a "slave trade" in hockey players, he said.

"With the possible exception of boxing, the hold which a small group of professional promoters has over this game is as unhealthy as anything which exists in sport today."

He pointed out that Vancouver, the only Canadian city to apply for an NHL franchise, was turned down in favor of six U.S. cities, one of which had not even applied.

The governors of the NHL may be the ones to decide what is best for their league, but we must decide to what extent we wish to give American hockey promoters power to influence young Canadian athletes," he said.

Each NHL team has a "protected list" of Canadian youngsters who must do what the professional teams which "own" them instruct them to do, he said. "Every year 20 to 40 boys leave B.C. to play hockey for professionally-sponsored amateur teams. They're mostly in Grades 10 and 11."

He quoted from a UBC student's graduate thesis on the effects on the boys' education.

Leafs Lose Another

Oh, Hurry Back Millie, Freddie!

LOS ANGELES (Special)—Victoria Maple Leafs and Los Angeles Blades are streaking through the Western Hockey League—in opposite directions.

The Blades, who beat the Leafs, 6-3, here Wednesday night, have a three-game win streak for the first time this season and they've won five of played six games, lost five and tied one.

They play in San Francisco against the Seals Friday, then don't play again until next Wednesday, when they are at home to Seattle Totems. Marcetta and Hucul are supposed to be back for that one.

Last night's game was long and rugged, delayed 20 minutes by an injury to Marcel Pelletier in the first period and another 10 in the third by one of the season's better fights.

It came at 14:47, with Blades leading, 6-3.

Blades' Bobby Schmaltz and Bill Shvetz of Victoria had been feuding all night, and Shvetz checked him into the boards.

Both players fell to the ice, and Blades' Marc Boileau pounced on Shvetz.

That brought Aut Erickson and John Sleser of Leafs into it, along with Bobby Orban and Ray LaRose of the Blades. When it was over, Shvetz and Sleser had minors and majors, LaRose and Orban majors, Boileau two minors and Erickson one.

MADE IT CLOSE
They played four a side the rest of the way, and Lou Jankowski made it close with two goals, his 24th and 25th of the season. The first came on a breakaway pass from Larry Keenan, the second directly off a face-off to the left of Jack Norris.

Norris came into a scoreless game when Pelletier suffered pulled ligaments in his left knee. Sawchuk made a great save on Beliveau.

Beliveau sent Canadiens ahead in the first period, but Ellis tied it up before the period ended and put Leafs ahead with a hard shot that beat Gump Worsley cleanly in the third period.

Pulford's goal came seconds after Toronto goalie Terry Sawchuk made a great save on Beliveau.

Paul Andrea, leading the Central Pro League in scoring before he was called up from Minnesota, scored once and drew an assist on Earl Ingarfield's goal in his NHL debut.

In Toronto, Ron Ellis scored twice and Bob Pulford put the puck in the empty net in the final seconds for the Maple Leafs.

School Basketball Starts Its Series

The trek down the trail to the B.C. high school basketball championship starts this weekend, with Oak Bay again the club to beat.

Annual lower Island tournament will be held Friday and Saturday at University of Victoria, with top four teams there going on to the Vancouver Island final the following weekend in Alberni against the top four from Duncan north.

From that tournament, the top three teams go to Vancouver and the B.C. tournament.

Gary Taylor's Bays went all the way to the provincial crown last year and are again favorites to lead the Island contingent.

With them in the lower Island tournament are Mount View and University School, who play Friday at 7 p.m.; Victoria High and St. Louis College, who play at 8:30, and Claremont.

Oak Bay, as day league winner, and Claremont, the night league champs, have drawn first-round byes. Oak Bay meets the winner of the Mount View-

University School game on Saturday at 11:30 a.m., and Claremont plays the Vic High-St. Louis College at 1 p.m.

Consolation games are set for 2:30 and 7, with the final at 8:30.

Falcons Make Choices

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—New Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League completed their squad of 42 experienced players Wednesday with the emphasis on youth, highlighted by the selection of Dennis Clarke, Green Bay Packers quarterback.

Clarke, Alex Hawkins of Baltimore Colts, Larry Benz and Bobby Franklin of Cleveland Browns and Maury Youmans of Dallas Cowboys were the most surprising acquisitions.

The squad included 22 players who had held starting jobs in the NFL. The 42-man group averaged 26.2 years of age and an NFL playing experience of 3.5 years a man.

Of the players selected, 23 played offense, 19 defense. Coach Norb Hecker of the Falcons, a former player with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, said:

"I am very happy about the selections. I think we have a fine group of defensive backs and defensive linemen. I was most surprised to get Clarke, Hawkins, Benz, Franklin and Youmans."

"I consider Clarke a great prospect. As of now, he is my quarterback."

Now Hockey

Newest role for Canada's Lorne (Roman) Greene is as one of 16 directors to head corporation governing Los Angeles team in National Hockey League. Among others: Canadian-born publisher Lord Thomson.

To Knock Over Russia

Canada Longshot in Hockey

WINNIPEG (CP) — Coach Jackie McLeod thinks Canada is the only team with a hope of dethroning the highly disciplined Russians at the 1968 world hockey championships in Ljubljana, Yugoslavia.

But he admits it will take a tremendous effort for the Canadians to recapture the world hockey crown.

"If three or four players come up with real big games and the rest play as well as they can, we can beat them," says McLeod, who was leading scorer on three world championship clubs.

He predicted Canada will finish first, followed by Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden.

In the first 38 exhibition games this season, the Canadian team has chalked up 26 winning and four ties. They also defeated the Russians (6-1) for the first time in 18 games between the two teams, but it was their only victory in six games this year against the Soviets.

BEAT SWEDEN 8-3

They also managed to pick up five of possible eight points against Czechoslovakia and defeated Sweden 8-3.

During these exhibition matches, McLeod, 35, a former star of Trail Smoke Eaters, discovered a few weaknesses and was forced to make adjustments which appear to have produced a strong Canadian team.

Paul Conlin, a veteran defenseman of the first National team assembled in 1963 by Father David Bauer, will leave his post to add strength to the forward line.

He will play on a line with Fran Huck, who came to the team this season after scoring 164 goals in two years in the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League.

Roger Bourbonnais and Marshall Johnston, both veterans of world championships since 1963, will form the first line with Ray Cadieux, who also saw action in the 1963 team.

Bourbonnais, prominent member of the 1963 Canadian junior champion Edmonton Oil Kings, paced the Nationals in exhibition goals with 24.

Candidates for the third line are Billy MacMillan, Rick McCann, defenseman George Faulkner, Morris Mott and Ted Hargreaves.

Lorne Davis, 35, a veteran of the National Hockey League, will replace Faulkner who is likely to become a forward in the world tournament.

Veteran goaltender Seth Martin, 32, twice chosen outstanding goaltender in world championships, will also accompany the team to Europe.

He will provide backup experience for veteran goaltender Ken Broderick and rookie Wayne Stephenson.

On the defensive lines, veterans Gary Begg, Barry MacKenzie, and Terry O'Malley will see action, along with Harvey

Schmidt, a junior graduate. The 18 starters will not be announced by McLeod until shortly before the championships. The team will leave for Europe Monday to play a five-game exhibition warmup.

No Baseball For Grigger

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Quarterback Fred Mazurek of Washington Redskins has been refused permission to play baseball with Pittsburgh Pirates, a spokesman for the National League Pirates said Tuesday.

General manager Joe L. Brown of the Pirates said the National Football League club feels that although Mazurek did not play much last year he has a fine future in pro football.

AT THE 19th

With Harry Young

Back into the golf business this week is Laurie Carroll, former professional to the Victoria Golf Club.

Laurie has gone into partnership with another local pro, Freddy Painter, and the pair of them are now running the Douglas Golf and Country Club on the Pat Bay Highway near Royal Oak.

With Freddy's experience as a greenskeeper and Laurie's popularity as a golf teacher, the pair should do well on this handy golf rendezvous.

Laurie has given up his commercial job to give full time to the new venture.

Douglas Golf and Country is not only a driving range but it has a par three nine-hole course, and last year it was a most successful venue for the annual Victoria District Committee's Junior golf clinic.

This year the District hopes that Golf and Laurie as hosts the Easter Holiday event, and with Fred and Laurie as hosts it should be a more suitable spot than ever.

One of the great difficulties facing any golfing organization is to secure recognition for its leading tournaments.

The RCGA appears to be getting there slowly in connection with its Canadian Open Championship because the winner of the Canadian event—Gene Littler—has been designated as the second alternative for a place in the World Series of Golf at Akron, Ohio, on Sept. 10-11.

Entry to the World Series is one of the most exclusive privileges of golf. The four participants are the winners of the U.S. Open, the British Open, the Masters and the PGA championship of America.

The only way anyone else can get in is if two or more of these events are won by the same person.

The competition by the big tournament organizers to get their man in as an alternate is sizzling hot.

This year the first alternate is the winner of the Western Open Championship of the U.S.

Thus if one player wins two of the designated events, then the Western champion is invited. If one player wins three of the designated events or two of them win two each, then the Canadian Champion is invited. (Littler gets the position because the 1966 Canadian Open takes place after the World Series and Littler will still be the current Canadian champion.)

Certainly it is long odds against Littler scraping in, but the RCGA is thankful that at least it has its foot in the door.

With the help of Segram's, the RCGA has managed to make its open one of the big money events of the season. It became $100,000 class at Toronto last year and the prize money will again be available for the Shaughnessy event later this year.

Then in 1967 at Montreal the prize fund will be raised to $200,000 as part of the centennial program.

Yet while money means a lot, it still does not buy prestige. The Canadian Open Championship, although the fourth oldest of its type in the world, still ranks a long way behind the U.S. and British Opens. Whether it will ever manage to crash through the barrier and become one of the big three remains to be seen, but certainly thanks to the efforts made by the RCGA in the past few years, it will not be for want of trying.

As in the fall district medals Ron McLeod is proving far too strong for all opposition in the spring series.

With two of the three rounds played, the Jasper pro is leading the field by eight strokes.

At Uplands Sunday, Ron shot 68 to add to his 71 at Gorge Vale in January. His total of 139 puts him well ahead of Norm Boden of Cowichan with 77-76-147. Next come Dave Fanthorpe of Gorge Vale with 73-76-149; Art Donaldson, Gorge Vale with 76-74-150; Hal Jacobson, Ardmore, 78-73-151; Ed Varcoe, Gorge Vale, 74-79-153, and Ricky Kent, Colwood, 76-77-153.

This weekend's button matches will be played at Uplands. Dick Munn and Tony Ritchie of Cedar Hill will defend against an Uplands team.

In the junior buttons Roger Bishop and Al Cliff of Uplands meet challenging clubmates in Dave Zabel and Marty Smith.

Larry McCooey and Roy Johnson of Royal Colwood are still holders of the Victoria district senior buttons. They defeated challengers Ray Spouse and Jack Brown of Gorge Vale on the 15th green at Gorge Vale and for their second defence, are due to meet Ted Williams and Bill Craven of Uplands on the challengers' course.

U.S. Networks 'Most Interested'

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Hockey League is negotiating with three television networks for a possible U.S. television contract, William Jennings, president of New York Rangers, said Tuesday.

Jennings described the Columbia Broadcasting System, National Broadcasting Co. and American Broadcasting Co. as "most interested" in televising NHL games.

Jennings, a member of the league's board of governors, said the NHL's addition of six new American franchisees approved last week "undoubtedly has changed the picture. Instead of us going to the networks, the networks are coming to us."

LOTS OF PARKING SPACE

The Austin Mini photographed during parking tests in Oshawa, Ontario.

Watch. We cut a normal parking space almost in half...yet the Austin Mini still makes it in one try!

Read about the unique engineering advances built into BMC's Mini cars...to make them the easiest-handling family cars on the road.

Most family cars just wouldn't fit into a 12-foot parking space. But it's a snap for the Austin Mini... the most manoeuvrable, easiest-handling family car you can drive. To prove it, we lopped almost 12 feet off a 24-foot parking spot — and asked the Mini to handle this parking test in one try. The amazing Austin Mini slipped into the parking spot comfortably, safely, a snug four inches from the curb! How do you build a car to handle so nimbly? BMC engineers mounted the engine sideways instead of lengthwise, so it takes up a mere 18 inches of space. Result: a car with plenty of room for four big people and all their luggage...yet only ten feet long! That's not all that's remarkable about the Mini. You get 50 miles or more to the gallon at highway speeds, front-wheel drive, hydro-elastic suspension too. See your BMC dealer for a demonstration. Try out the ride, the handling — the features that make Mini a car you'll be proud to own. You'll be convinced... nobody puts more into car-making than BMC.

Anti-Convulsant Withdrawn

Sex Affected by Drug

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clinical experience has shown that Eliphen, an anti-convulsant drug ordered withdrawn from the U.S. market, can cause "sexual precocity masculinization of young females," the head of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration reports.

Eliphen is not available in Canada.

The drug, used for control of epilepsy, is being withdrawn from the market at the request of the FDA.

Dr. James L. Goddard, FDA commissioner, says "clinical experience since the drug has been on the market shows that in some children it causes sexual precocity masculinization of young females and other untoward effects."

Bus Plunge Kills 30

PAMPLONA, Columbia (Reuters) — Thirty persons were feared killed when a bus plunged down a 600-foot precipice near here Tuesday night. Most of the other 45 passengers in the bus were injured.

DOCTORS' REPORT

"Ciba had withheld from the agency results of animal studies made in 1959 prior to the time its new drug application became effective," Goddard says.

"Some of the clinical experience reported to Ciba by physicians using the drug was not in turn reported by Ciba to the FDA, as required by law."

The commissioner says there are some 14 other prescription drugs used as anti-convulsants.

3/4 cup uncooked Delta Long Grain White Rice
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped green pepper

1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup raisins
2 tsp. curry powder
1/2 cup sliced almonds
2 tbsp. butter

Preparation
Add 1 tsp. salt to the 2 1/2 cups of water; add the chicken breasts and simmer for 10-15 mins. Remove chicken. Add rice and 1 tsp. salt to the 1 1/2 cups chicken broth remaining in pot. Continue cooking for 10 mins. at low heat. (Rice is then partially cooked; do not drain.)
Remove chicken from bone and cube, brown in fry pan with 1/4 cup butter until golden; add onions and green pepper; sauté until tender.
Combine chicken, onions, green pepper, curry powder, raisins and 1/2 tsp. salt with partially cooked rice in the remainder of the broth and pour into 1 1/2 qt. casserole. Cover and bake at 350°F. for 45-50 minutes.
Sauté sliced almonds in 2 tbsp. butter and add to casserole dish during last 15 minutes of cooking.

Variations
(1) Add 1 cup canned tomatoes to above recipe.
(2) Omit the curry and raisins and add a dash of coarse pepper.
(3) Omit the curry and raisins and add 1/2 cup cream of celery soup, 1/2 cup sour cream and 1 tsp. paprika. Combine all ingredients and bake as above.

Labor Study Urged

WINNIPEG (CP) — The future of labor in Canada is a national problem that needs national solutions, Russell Irvine, associate director of research for the Canadian Labor Congress said Wednesday.

Speaking to delegates attending a productivity conference sponsored by the Economic Council of Canada, Mr. Irvine said the federal government has the chief responsibility to see that Canada's labor force makes a smooth transition to automation.

Mr. Irvine suggested that in implementing successful manpower training policies, the federal government should conduct more intensive research into the behavior of the labor market.

HIGHER GRANTS

He said other proposals he had included higher grants to adult workers being retrained, grants instead of loans to workers moving to jobs in various parts of the country, training program for immigrants and a more elaborate placement service.

He said he found all these elements are now in operation in various parts of the Canadian economy but not to the extent that was necessary.

LACK CRITICIZED

Mr. Irvine also criticized the lack of research conducted into the labor market. "How can we have successful manpower policies if we don't know which skills are declining and which are increasing?"

Employers were in for an unpleasant surprise if they thought they could introduce technological changes without considering their employees, he said.

"I know you often face infuriating situations caused by unions, but may I suggest this is often caused by the workers' feeling of insecurity in face of technological changes," he told the delegates.

Moon Race Toss-Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rocket scientists Werner Von Braun says the United States is going to have to "keep running like hell" to beat the Russians to the moon.

Von Braun, director of the Civilian Space Agency's space flight research centre at Huntsville Ala., told the American Newspaperwomen's Club Tuesday night it's still a "wide open question" who would win the moon race. "We have a definite chance of losing," he added.

He said he was convinced the United States would make a manned landing on the moon by Jan. 31, 1969, within the time set by the late President John Kennedy.

Short row beats long drive

Oar-Some Trip Trims Travel

SEATTLE (AP) — W. W. Hallberg took a job with the Boeing plant from his home as a methods analyst. Now he's using a new method to get to work.

He's rowing, not driving. Soon after he started the job, he found it took him 45 minutes to drive to or from work. And he could see the Boeing plant from his home just a short distance across Lake Washington.

Wheat Sales Soaring

OTTAWA (UPI) — Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp announced in the commons Wednesday that as of Feb. 2, Canada had exported a record-smashing 302,000,000 bushels of wheat since the beginning of the current crop year in August 1, 1965.

This announcement came during a two and a half hour long debate in the commons which pitted Sharp as minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board, against Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker and an assortment of prairie Tories over the long-standing issue of box-cars and the slow grain movement to west coast ports.

Hot Tomato Not Authentic

TORONTO (CP) — Is Ontario defrauding Europeans by sending Miss Ontario Corn and Miss Ontario Tomato to various trade fairs in Europe?

Elmer Sopha, Liberal member of the provincial legislature for the riding of Sudbury, says it is.

Mr. Sopha, questioning agriculture department officials during a legislative committee meeting on public accounts Tuesday, asked how much it cost to send the girls to the fairs and if it wasn't "a waste of money."

It didn't really cost much, said Deputy Minister Everett Biggs. The girls had actually been recruited in England.

"Then I submit the department is defrauding the Europeans by making them think these two buxom girls are actually the good, splay-footed, double-breasted Ontario variety," said Mr. Sopha.

Later, agriculture department officials said they don't really know where the girls—Gisela Weusthoff and Friedel Wirtz—come from, except that they aren't from Ontario.

Finance Expert Dies at 61

Christie

John Allen Christie, 61, former financial manager of the B.C. Power Commission and treasurer of the Vancouver School Board, died in his sleep at his Turgoe Point home overnight Tuesday.

A fine athlete in his youth, he was educated at Victoria High School and McGill University, from which he received his bachelor of commerce degree in 1925.

Mr. Christie was born in Moosemin, Sask., but came to Victoria as a small boy when his father, the late Major A. E. Christie, moved to the city to manage the Union Bank of Canada.

RCAF VETERAN

Maj. Christie had fought in the Riel Rebellion and the Boer War. He served again with the 67th Battalion in the First World War.

Mr. Christie joined the RCAF in 1941 and left the service in 1947. A brother, Charles, was killed when serving with the Canadian Corps in Italy in 1943.

Mr. Christie was treasurer of the Vancouver School Board before he enlisted in the Second World War.

RETIREMENT

Semi-retired, in recent years Mr. Christie had helped set up a new accounting system for the Family and Children's Service in Victoria.

Survivors include his wife, Kathleen, of the University of Victoria faculty, two daughters, Gail and Joan in California; a granddaughter, Lori Mutch, North Vancouver; a brother, T. L. Christie, secretary of the Greater Victoria School Board; a sister, Mrs. Betty Glass, Vancouver.

A memorial service is being planned, to be held in Christ Church Cathedral.

'Corpse' Finally Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Alberta the temporary suspension of van, lifted the blanket and Piper, 57, found to be alive in a city morgue after a coroner pronounced her dead Saturday died in hospital Wednesday.

Cause of death was not disclosed and an inquest has been called.

The inquest will supplant an investigation ordered by Morton Shulman, Metropolitan Toronto's chief coroner, after

CODE WAS FRENCH The international distress signal, "Mayday," is taken from the French, "M'aidez," meaning "help me."

Dr. Johns was called to her apartment Saturday by police after relatives found her lying on her bathroom floor. He said he examined her twice and she had "no respiration, no pulse, no apparent heartbeat and her pupils did not react to light."

Two policemen, the woman's sister and brother-in-law also believed she was dead.

As the woman was being carried from a van into the morgue she was heard to gasp, Timothy Platt, driver of the

Hopes Fade For Lost Miners

KAMP - LINTFORT, West Germany (Reuters)—Thirteen men died in a fire-damp blast which shook a coal mine here Wednesday.

A mining company statement said there was little hope of finding alive three more miners missing in the wrecked gallery, more than 2,000 feet below ground.

The announcement followed a frantic 16-hour search through hundreds of tons of fallen rock.

Police Hunting Murderer Of 'Pay for Play' Girl

FRANKFURT (AP) — Police investigating the murder of Helga Matura, 33, a high-living prostitute in this West German city, found $25,000 in her bank account.

Some 200 prostitutes have been killed in West Germany since the Second World War. About 70 murders have not been solved, including the strangling of Rosemarie Nitribitt, another wealthy Frankfurt play-for-pay girl whose fate inspired a book and a movie critical of West Germany's affluent society.

Prostitution is a hazardous business, says an expert of the federal criminal police headquarters, adding:

Koreans: Great People in an Overwhelming Situation

A picture of a rapidly developing Korea, rebuilding after the war, was painted by Miss Beulah Bourns, who has been a missionary nurse in the country for 34 years.

Keeps Joints From Creaking

BLANCHARD, IOWA (AP) Miss Elva Bean is 77 years old and, say the people of Blanchard, the best "paper boy" the town ever had. "What's more, she's an inspiration for the rest of us. We see Elva carrying around and figure if she can do it, we can, too," says Mrs. Annabelle Nickolls, the town postmistress. And Miss Bean? She says: "I sure have a lot of fun. Besides, all this walking keeps my joints from creaking and getting stiff." Miss Bean began delivering papers 10 years ago when, she says, "a nice young man mentioned he was unable to get youngsters interested in a newsboy job. Now she delivers five different newspapers."

Variety Program Planned

Board members of the Victoria Musical Art Society met at the home of the president Mrs. B. G. Watts. Plans were finalized for the once-a-year performance of outstanding students.

A variety program has been decided upon this year, to include performers from the Wynne Shaw Dance Studio, the Vera Barclay Junior Studio Singers, the Speech Arts class of Mrs. Green, and members of the Intermediate Musical Arts Group.

Mr. D. Abbott reported that the Faculty of the School of Music would perform at concluding concert of the season on March 6 at the McPherson Playhouse.

Mrs. W. Luck was welcomed as a new member to the board of directors. She comes to the board with a wealth of experience having been actively associated with the Women's Musical Groups in Winnipeg.

QUICK PIZZA

Everyone loves pizza, especially the younger set. For quick pizzas open a can of refrigerator biscuits and flatten them to about a 4-inch circle on a greased cookie sheet. Spread on pizza catnap for that good Italian flavor. Top with any available leftover food in your refrigerator or use chopped sausages or wieners. Sprinkle on Parmesan or Mozzarella cheese and bake in hot oven for 5-10 minutes.

She was speaking at a meeting of the United Church Women of Southern Vancouver Island Presbyterian Wednesday in Centennial United Church.

The picture of the country as a land of starving refugees is no longer valid, Miss Bourns pointed out.

"When I returned after the war there was not a single store, now there are large modern department stores. A new civilization is being built up from nothing."

The country has a 4,000-year history, but it is only in the past 50 years that foreigners have been welcomed, since a foreign doctor saved the life of one of the Royal princes and the edict against the heads of foreigners was withdrawn.

"It was a very advanced culture. Korea had the first observatory in the world, and the first movable type.

"They are a great people in an overwhelming situation. Under the Japanese protectorate there was a lack of education. There were no Koreans in official positions, and the church provided the only opportunities for them," Miss Bourns said.

However, there are now four universities, and more children are being educated than ever before.

Miss Bourns told of her work in the mission field, and of the babies she cares for in her own home. These are babies who have been in hospital or have no home, and need extra love and care.

"I don't run an adoption agency or an orphanage but I do manage to place a lot of these babies with families," she said.

She expressed her appreciation for the layettes and other articles of clothing sent by United Church Women to the mission.

During the morning session, officers were elected. Mrs. F. G. Matkin succeeds Mrs. J. H. Sneddon as president. Other officers are Mrs. R. J. Young, Mrs. J. H. Youson, Mrs. T. G. Sewell, Mrs. A. Falenberg and Mrs. C. J. Cruickshank, vice-presidents.

Mrs. J. F. Muir, recording secretary; Mrs. J. H. Sneddon, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. H. M. White, treasurer.

Committee chairmen are Mrs. V. C. Beaumont, Christian citizenship; Mrs. W. E. Cook, finance; Mrs. W. Gibb, nominations, and Mrs. F. G. Matkin, development.

Portfolio secretaries are Mrs. R. Baird, community friendship and visiting; Mrs. J. Drysdale, literature and periodicals; Mrs. A. Calder, press and publicity; Mrs. R. J. Garner, program; Mrs. A. Falenberg, stewardship and recruiting; Mrs. S. Owan, supply and social assistance, and Mrs. A. H. Stevenson, archives.

Retiring president Mrs. J. H. Sneddon was presented with a life membership and pin. Report of the treasurer, Mrs. H. M. White showed that $17,575.94 had been raised by the 28 churches represented at the meetings and allocations had been met for the Missionary and Maintenance fund.

A sum of $320 from the "over and above" gift fund was donated to special projects—a school in Jamaica and a new mission boat.

Mrs. G. A. Pole, reporting for the supply and welfare committee, stated that 780 pound parcels had been sent to Korea; 1,500 pounds of clothing and toys to B.C. hospitals, schools and missions, and other clothing to Goodwill Enterprises and the Salvation Army.

Cash donations included $40 to the Beulah Bourns Milk Fund, and $50 to Gorge View Senior Citizens.

Mrs. J. G. Martin, chairman of the community friendship and visiting committee, reported that a tremendous amount of visiting was done among the elderly, the hospitalized and shut-ins.

Youth groups of the churches sang Christmas carols in nur-ring homes and in private homes. Eighteen women of the Gorge View Senior Citizens homes were taken to church on Christmas, and another UCV group visited St. Mary's Priory. Others were given baskets at fruit at Christmas.

Mrs. G. Tuttle from Vancouver spoke on Africa during the evening session. Resolutions report was given by Mrs. T. G. Sewell.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: All my married life I've felt like a nobody because I was "only a housewife." My husband made me feel that I should be grateful to him for putting food in my mouth and clothes on my back.

Today I read something that gave me a lift. If you print it I'll bet you'll give thousands of housewives a new lease on life. The home economics department of our state college published a leaflet in chart form. It shows what a housewife is worth per week in dollars and cents on today's labor market. Here it is:

Cooking, table-setting, serving, at $2 an hour... $50.
Dishwashing, at $1.25 an hour... $17.50.

Child care at 50c an hour (ridiculous since this is what most sitters get for just sitting)... $17.50.

Routine housework, at $1.25 an hour... $22.50.
Laundry, at $1.25 an hour... $6.25.

Ironing, at $1.25 an hour... $6.25.

The chart suggests adding 25 per cent for miscellaneous work. So the grand total is $150 a week. On a yearly basis a housewife is worth $7,800.

Believe it or not but this leaflet has given me dignity. I no longer feel like a parasite. Tonight when Mr. Greathart comes home I'm going to greet him like a woman who earns almost $8,000 a year because that's what I am.—ASHAMED NO LONGER

Dear Ashamed No Longer: Housewives of America, unite! Clip this column for your husband. And as for you, Mr. Greathart, take that — and that — and that —

Dear Ann Landers: Five years ago I had a baby girl out wedlock. I saw her while I was in the hospital and then turned her over to an adoption agency.

Since that time I married a wonderful, mature man who has a Ph.D. in education and is now teaching. We have a child and hope to have more. I have not been honest with my husband about my past, and this bothers me terribly. What's more, my feeling of guilt seems to be growing instead of diminishing.

I've been considering checking with the adoption agency to learn if my daughter is happy and if she is being well taken care of. If she is not, I'm sure my husband would help me to regain custody. Wouldn't this be the ideal solution? Advise me please.—MOTHER OF TWO

Dear Mother: Ideal for whom? Surely not for the child—or for the adoptive parents. Tell your husband the truth and get this off your conscience.

And forget about trying to locate the child. A legitimate agency will not give you the information, and if you were able to get it by hook or crook, your chances of regaining custody would be zero.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a paper boy who has the usual gripe about people who owe money and don't answer the doorbell when they know I am coming to collect. But that's not what I'm writing about.

I wish you'd print something about people who have nice warm homes but won't ask us in for a few minutes when we are out trying to collect.

Tonight it was below zero and I was freezing. A dozen people handed the money to me through a crack in the door and then slammed it real fast so they wouldn't let any cold air in the house. Don't they realize the paper boy is out in that cold air for hours?

One word from you could help a lot. Thanks, Ann.—ICICLE IKE

Dear Readers Who Live Where It's Cold: For heaven's sake folks, please invite the paper boy in to thaw out on those freezing nights when he comes to collect. There, son, I said 22 words, and I hope it helps.

Fashion Designing Pays Off

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Career-minded girls who want to design their way to the top in fashion, hear this: The big jobs are waiting for you.

Julia Coburn, executive director of the Tobe-Coburn School for Fashion Careers, says so. Miss Coburn now is in the process of viewing bulging mailbags that began arriving at the school early in January. Each bag contains hundreds of inquiries and applications for entry into the Ivy halls of fashion fame.

The culling process starts after the first of March when the committee on admissions considers the school or college record of applicants.

Why do the mailbags bulge? Miss Coburn, a Vassar graduate who did graduate work at the Sorbonne in Paris, answered by saying:

"In the career world, fashion is no longer spinich—it's dough, the kind that puts one in the high-income bracket."

According to the 1960 census, the annual median income for the more than 40,000,000 working men in the nation was $6,686; for the over 23,000,000 women, $3,296.

A recent survey among graduates of the Tobe-Coburn school showed that the average annual income was $9,631—$3,000 more than the national average for male workers.

The school's grads of the 1940s are earning from $16,300 to $30,000 in fashion field jobs involving advertising, promotion, retail fashion co-ordination, public relations and writing.

Miss Coburn said a lot of girls are drawn to the fashion field because it is uncr-waded and the money is good.

But she reminded that the adage remains true. It does no good to try to fit the square peg into the round hole.

How do you decide whether you're square with regard to a fashion career?

Miss Coburn, head of the school for 25 years and witness to the graduation of more than 2,500 students, described the criteria she uses to evaluate an applicant's aptitude.

"Common sense, first of all," she said. "And a penchant for hard work. It isn't enough that a girl has taste and knows how to choose her own wardrobe well."

"She may have those talents and still belong more properly in a research laboratory. What is needed is a deep-seated, genuine interest in fashion and a conviction that for millions of people it plays a very important role in living because it provides color, excitement and drama."

Miss Coburn discourages girls who think fashion's merely superficial.

"It can't be separated from people," she said. "You have to be out-going and have a real liking for people."

Ottawa Wiping Out Jet Debt

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence department will pay its last installment — $2,382,000 — on the CF-104 low-level nuclear jet bomber in the fiscal year which begins April 1, 1966.

A defence department spokesman said Wednesday this will bring the total capital cost for the program to $463,762,000.

Maintenance of the RCAF air division in Europe, which flies the CF-104, will continue to cost at least $100,000,000 a year.

Defence Minister Hellyer told the Commons last week that Canada's nuclear role in Europe will be reduced as the CF-104s wear out. But this will take a long time, probably five years at least, officials say.

War Plans Queried By Group

The Victoria Committee to End the War in Viet Nam has sent a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson requesting a public investigation of plans to recruit Canadians to fight in Viet Nam.

The group also wanted to know who was financing the campaign, where the plan originated and "how is the American Consulate involved."

MIAMI (UPI) — Coast Guard planes and two Mexican naval vessels searched the islands off the eastern tip of the Yucatan peninsula Wednesday for an American scientific boat with four persons aboard.

The 99-foot Linda Walker out of Pascagoula, Miss., reported in a "Mayday" message early Wednesday that it was on a reef near Cozumel Island and being pounded by seas.

Strike End Demanded

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) —

Provisional president Hector Garcia-Godoy Wednesday night denied reports he was planning to resign and demanded an end of the general strike that has cost the national economy an estimated $5,000,000 in the past seven days.

In a national television broadcast, Garcia-Godoy said it was his "responsibility" to stay in office until next June, when national elections are scheduled. "I will not give in to anyone else," he said, after rumors had circulated of an imminent crisis in the government.

GIRL SHOT

The death of a 15-year-old girl, shot three times in the chest, brought to 24 the total number of persons killed since the current wave of violence erupted. The girl was hit when police fired over the heads of a group of menacing civilians.

Two hours before Garcia-Godoy made his address, a group of some 80 Dominican businessmen petitioned the American government to investigate the policies of the president, claiming the provisional government was leading the country to the brink of Communism.

ECONOMY FROZEN

Garcia-Godoy demanded all government workers return to their jobs Thursday and exhorted the striking unions to call off the walkout that has frozen almost all economic and government activity in Santo Domingo and much of the country.

The president said he was again ordering former air force chief Col. Juan de los Santos Cespedes and former army Col. Jacinto Martinez Arana to accept his decree and take posts assigned them in Israel and Argentina.

These two officers are the only key officials remaining in the country who were ordered to foreign posts by the president Jan. 5.

The general strike erupted in protest to the national police opening fire on a leftist student demonstration before the national palace and quickly developed into a demand for the departure of the two military men.

Argentina Visited By Navy

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters)—Eight ships of the Royal Canadian Navy arrived in Argentina Wednesday for a goodwill visit.

Under the command of Commodore J. C. O'Brien, the six destroyers and two frigates planned to remain off Buenos Aires until Monday when they will continue their cruise of South Atlantic waters.

Meanwhile, the Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure and submarine Grilse arrived in Montevideo, Uruguay Wednesday.

Some 1,000 Uruguayan citizens will be given a party aboard the Bonaventure.

He was identified as Hollis Victor Robison, a former boy friend of the sister of the girl who was shot.

Patricia Adams, 13, was hit in the foot by a shotgun charge when she opened a Valentine package intended for her older sister. Hospital attendants said the blast grazed the top of her left foot and broke no bones. She was not believed hurt seriously.

Detectives said that a valenrectangular-shaped brief case was addressed to Patricia's 17-year-old sister, Nancy.

But when Nancy saw the case, the officers said, she remembered a boy had told Patricia he was going to give her a delayed Valentine present.

Instead of reading the note and seeing her name, Nancy called to her sister: "Patricia, here is your Valentine." The detectives said Patricia opened the brief case and the movement triggered a sawed-off

Crime Victim Aid Sought

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police Chief Ralph Booth said Wednesday the war on crime can be successfully fought only if crime victims are compensated for their injuries.

The police chief said he favors any legislation authorizing establishment of a board—similar to the Workmen's Compensation Board—having the power to compensate victims of criminal activity.

"We are spending millions of dollars on rehabilitating criminals but nothing is being done for their victims," Chief Booth said.

"The police know only too well that their success in fighting crime depends upon the cooperation of the public." He said many persons are reluctant to aid policemen in difficulty because of personal danger and the lack of compensation.

BOOTH WAY
"So often when citizens do help police officers in trouble and are injured as a result of helping the police, they have no way of recovering damages for injuries."

"It is frustrating to think that all the police can do is send a letter of thanks to citizens in such an instance."

Woman Admits Starving Her Pets

An SPCA inspector and a Saanich policeman found a dog whimpering, a cat crying and a canary dead when they visited Mrs. Josephine Webber's home Dec. 15.

There was no one in the house.

Mrs. Webber, who now lives in Richmond, pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court Wednesday to failing to provide a suitable care for animals. She asked Mrs. Webber: "Don't you feel filled with shame at treating so cruelly helpless animals?"

PETS EXHAUSTED

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said the two pets were found in a state of exhaustion in the house's basement.

The floor was covered in manure and the pet's food dishes were empty and dusty. The canary was found dead in a cage in the living room.

MALNUTRITION

Mr. Birkett said a veterinarian said the dog and cat were suffering from malnutrition and the canary died of the same thing.

Mrs. Webber was located the same day, court was told, and when confronted with the evidence, she told police: "Yes, I know it's bad."

She also said the canary died "the other day."

Magistrate William Ostler

Mr. Lawley told the court this when testifying against Leach.

Alternate Attraction

Stars Shine Bright At '66 Auto Show

By GORDON DODD

The cars get classier every year at the Victoria auto international show, so you would think it would be a problem to find the stage performance to match.

If it is a problem, it doesn't show in this year's alternate attraction to the motorist's land of dreams.

The show is really mostly of tried and true formula—both hill-toppers are no strangers to the Arena stage, and songstress Terry Cain is pure local talent—but there are no points lost for that.

For sheer professional polish, Miss Cain can't hope to match some of such long standing as the Harmonicals and Four Lads. But dark, attractive, looks, warm personality and good singing voice she has, so that in the performance I caught, she fulfilled the difficult task of starting the bill with more than distinction, first with the nostalgic leaving of a heart in San Francisco followed by a My Fair Lady medley.

The Harmonicals earn their rating as virtuosos of their instruments.

Their act is rhythmic and above all, musical—something more than the sound of a harmonica. When they turn on the Offbeat, they show just how well the mouth instrument can sound in unusual, classical vein. Twelfth Street Rag is more predictable, equally exhibiting in the hands of these gifted musicians.

Reflections on listening to the Four Lads: Harmony is not yet a thing of the past among singing groups, thank goodness. There must always be a place for the artistry of the Four Lads and their useful, articulate treatment of numbers like Down by the Riverside, Stand-

Canadians Die In U.S. Crash

LEESBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Three Canadians were killed near here in the collision of a car and a pickup truck. Seven other persons were injured. The dead were identified by highway patrol as Georges Lambert, 55, his brother Paul, no age available, and J. F. Goyette, no age available, all of Three Rivers, Que.

who has pleaded not guilty to assault causing bodily harm.

Mr. Lawley said he asked Leach to leave the hotel June 11 of last year. Leach was singing in the lobby, he said.

He said he received a blow on the back of his left knee as he made a quarter turn and looked up to see Leach running from the hotel.

Mr. Lawley said he was unconscious for about 10 minutes and had received severe contusions to his face.

Leach, of Powell River, said Mr. Lawley had placed his hands on him and he (Leach) pushed him away.

But Magistrate Ostler found Leach guilty and fined him $50.

Richard F. Fletcher hit a wooden fence when he lost control of his car at Tenynson and Dupplin early Wednesday morning.

Fletcher, 1073 Stelly's Cross Road, pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was jailed for 14 days.

ADDITIONAL TIME

He also pleaded guilty to driving while disqualified and was jailed for an additional 21 days.

A breathalyzer reading of .15 was taken, court was told.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Fletcher had been previously convicted of driving while disqualified and had lost his licence twice before.

Magistrate Ostler barred him from driving anywhere in Canada for 18 months.

Glenn Raymond Galbraith, 122 Menzies, was remanded to today on charges of being a minor in possession of liquor

Garden Notes

Cut Now, Reap Later

By M. V. CHERNUT
In yesterday's column on the planting of raspberries, I pointed out that all top growth should be cut down immediately after planting, thereby sacrificing next summer's crop. It has been my experience that the average some gardener finds this advice pretty hard to take, for the canes you buy for planting are so long, so firm, so full of fat buds and promising such an abundant crop.
"Can't I leave them to bear some fruit next summer?" My readers ask me wistfully. "Or, at least, couldn't I cut them only part way down?"
If you leave them untouched, it is quite possible that you will get some berries next summer, for raspberries are remarkably fool-proof in their performance. But even in ideal soil, with perfect growing weather and a surface mulch of old rotted manure, the fruit won't be very plentiful and the individual berries will probably be wizened and undersized.
Not only that, but by taking a miserable and unsatisfactory crop the first year, the whole future of your raspberry patch is jeopardized, for the growth will have gotten off on the wrong foot, so to speak, and may never again become properly synchronized with the seasons.

Suppose your impatience for a feed of fresh, home-grown sun-ripened raspberries induces you to compromise, and instead of cutting all top growth back to little 6-inch stubs, you tip the canes back to, say, 3 feet.
Instead of strong, new canes pushing up directly from the roots, the plant's energy will be expended in making spindly branches or side shoots from the lightly-pruned canes. These will probably produce some blossoms and fruit along toward autumn, long after the regular raspberry season is over.
Then, at pruning time, when all canes which have borne fruit are cut to the ground, you will have no husky young canes to take their place, but a collection of thin, whippy, slender stuff with a built-in habit of fruiting in the autumn.
You see, there is a reserve of nutrients stored in the roots, manufactured in the leaves by last summer's sunshine and "banked" in the woody portions of the roots. If this capital is expended in producing a crop of berries the first year, your plant is bankrupt and will spend the rest of its life in debt to the soil bank, never quite catching up.

When the newly-planted canes are cut down, the reserves or "savings" stored in the roots are not expended on consumer goods—the berries—but are invested instead in production machinery—the new, vigorous, young canes—which will be capable of paying handsome dividends a year hence.
You have your choice, then, of eating up your capital this summer, or investing it and waiting a year, drawing substantial annual dividends thereafter without any depletion of capital.
No matter how you look at it, the profitable way is to cut down all canes to within six inches of ground level as soon as they are planted and this holds whether you buy and plant raspberry roots or whether you transplant existing roots from one site to another.
In this way, the whole of the stored energy in the roots will be channelled into the production of stout, vigorous canes which will come into bearing in the summer of 1967.

ART BUCHWALD Gets Politics for Dinner

Wives Opinion-Makers

WASHINGTON — John Schneider, the new president of CBS, was quoted as saying the other day that one of the reasons he had cancelled some of the daytime live Senate hearings was that the "opinion makers in the United States did not watch daytime television."
I don't know who the opinion maker in Schneider's family is, but in my house it happens to be my wife, and she has been watching the hearings faithfully. If it's true in other homes, the housewife may be the best informed person on Viet Nam in the country.
The other day I came home from the office and said casually, "What's new?"
"George Kennan made a very interesting case against our present containment policy."
"Oh," I said, "that's nice."
"He differed in some respects from Gen. Gavin on the endgame, but he has come out for courageous liquidation of unsound positions, rather than stubborn pursuit of extravagant or uncompromising objectives."

"That's fine," I said. "What's for dinner?"
"I didn't have time to get dinner because I got entranced listening to Sen. Fulbright, who feels that our present policy would get us entangled with Communism, which would lead to a ground war that nobody wants."
"Look, I'm tired," I said. "What did the kids do today?"
"I have no idea. They came in just when Sen. Morse started praising Kennan for his forthright position. Morse also praised Gavin, but he wasn't very nice to David Bell."
"Who's David Bell?" I asked.
"He's the head of A.I.D., and he was the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's first witness. He has a nice face."
"Did the plumber come?" I asked.
"I have no idea. Bell was interesting about the social and economic gains that had to be made in South Viet Nam, if we ever hoped to win over the people, and he's asking for an extra $500,000,000 to continue the work. I think we ought to give it to him."

"That's good. When is dinner going to be served?"
"Don't you want to know what I think of the dangers of an open-ended escalation policy?"
"I hadn't given it much thought," I said.
"Well, the real danger of escalation is that, no matter how many men we put in, Hanoi will put in a number equal to it in ratio. Therefore, we can never hope to win by escalation."
"On the other hand, if we pulled out, and both Gavin and Kennan seem to agree on this, the South Vietnamese government wouldn't last a week."
"We've got to find a solution which will bring neither victory nor defeat, but will guarantee freedom on our terms rather than those of the Communists."
"It sounds complicated," I said.
"Oh, it is. I spoke to Marjabelle Young and she says she's not happy with my options there."
"Who is? Now, can I eat?"
"In a minute. I just want to see what Eric Sevareid has to say."
The phone rang and my wife picked it up.
"Oh, Kathy, I'm so glad you called. I know, but don't forget we still have to hear from Maxwell Taylor and Dean Rusk. I'm keeping an open mind on it until then."
"Well, really, Kathy, how can you say it's possible to have a blockade without an open declaration of war... I know, but K's policies are not consistent with ours... Can I call you back? My husband is screaming for his dinner. Yours, too... You would think they'd take a slight interest in what was going on in the world."

SHEILAH GRAHAM Meets the Laugh

Diller in the Chips

NEW YORK (NANA) — "Darling, it rolls in and you stand back and say, 'Oh my goodness, not more money!'" says Phyllis Diller who has what she calls a $32,000,000 plan. "I made half a million last year, I'll make a million this year, and two million next. Each year I will double what I make until I hit $32,000,000." She wasn't quite sure what she would do then. Probably just keep on buying fur coats. She has every kind, from Jaguar to mink. She was wearing a leopard coat, leopard hat, leopard boots and leopard shopping bag, a small orange as a ring, and with her wisps of hair at right angles from her well-scrubbed face, she was a sight to behold.
Everyone has heard Phyllis Diller even if they have not heard of her. And most people have. She's the hottest and noisiest novelty in show business. I have signed to make five films (she has just finished her first, with Bob Hope). She is currently seen in five television commercials, washing machines, wax paper, shirts to soup to nuts. She recently appeared at the Coconut Grove, Las Vegas in belching. She's making records, "and the big new thing with me is my pilot, Feb. 28, The Pruitts of Southampton, it's a grand, chic and low comedy," and she emitted that raucous laugh which is her trademark.
She has plenty to laugh about. "All except my last marriage," she said stifling a loud giggle. "My first marriage lasted 25 years, my second was over in 25 minutes. Ah well, you can't win 'em all. Looking at me, now, would you ever believe that I was a young, naive, do-nothing? My maiden name was Driver and I developed strength from my weak nesses. I love to work. I was an only child and from the age of six I was given responsibility. I was paid two cents to mail a letter. The mail must go through, and I felt responsible all the way. My father's idea. He would be 103 if he were alive today."

With all of the success—first fame for Phyllis came on the Jack Paar show—it's hard to believe that she has been in show business proper for only 10 years. "Before that I was a housewife, and before that a pregnant housewife. I have five children. I've done shows on the road, Dark at the Top of the Stairs. I was offered the Bea Lillie part on tour in High Spirits but then I got the call for Bob Hope's picture and I'd rather make pictures and stay in California with the kids. I've been offered a Broadway show, but I can't afford to do it. The money problem, you know, no matter what they pay you it can't match what I'm making now."
Like most of the show-business sages, Miss Diller was poor to begin with. "I was a naive suburban housewife—Pabulum and diapers; no money. I started to write and in-between the writing I was scrubbing. I wanted to pay someone else to do the scrubbing, so I went to a newspaper for three months. I wrote two columns, one fashion, the other shopping. I got $50 a week and paid $20 to a nice girl to look after things at home. I had five jobs in five years."

"After the newspaper I went to an advertising company and said, 'If I don't do a better job than any broad you've got, I'll fire myself in two weeks. I was firing myself while I was hiring myself. Then I did a cooking show on television. I wore a gorgeous evening dress with an apron. I stuffed the turkey through the back. At the end I opened the oven and it was a pile of ashes. The potatoes were like tennis balls."
Phyllis, five feet four, weight 107 pounds, has this recipe for staying thin: "Eat breakfast like a king, lunch like a prince, dinner like a pauper."

Too Much Self-Love

DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Much of our human distress is the result of being shackled to our own tiny, subjective realms. We have eyes only to see our little worlds as if there were no other.
Like Narcissus of old we fall in love with our own reflections and live as if no other reality existed but our own.
One doctor's experience gives the clue. A woman telephoned to say that she wished to visit his office that same day. The physician replied that he was not free that afternoon, but that he would be pleased to receive her the following day. To which she impatiently responded: "But, doctor, I live very close to your office. I can come over in 10 minutes."
It did not matter to her, of course, that the doctor could not see her. Since the distance was small, it saved her time to reach him. What matters to her is herself; if she saves time then he must save time too. Her only reality is herself. What she experiences and wants, all others must, too.
This same unrealistic, subjective mentality strains many a relationship—because we tend to be under-related to others when we are over-related to ourselves.
Many parents have concern for their children primarily in these wrong terms. What rates, in their estimation, are the things which children do that give them pleasure—without regard to the young one's feelings at all.
Too often we consider the achievements of our children to be worthy only if they bring credit to parents or if they prove how obedient the children are in the iron will of elders.

To be sure, it is normal and natural for fathers and mothers to seek to guide and to share the lives of their youngsters. Indeed, parents who lack the will-to-lead cannot excuse their own moral laziness in the name of a vague, spineless, often pointless "democratic" family life which tumbles to the level of the lowest common denominator.
But wise leadership must always take followership into account—it must, if it is to be loved, not feared—if it is to wield the authority of influence rather than of coercion.
And we influence best when we stand a little higher than our children, but not so high that we lose sight of them—or that they, in turn, can no longer catch a vision of us.

Husbands and wives suffer, too, from similar difficulties. A noted psychiatrist asks: "How many husbands have a picture of their wives as being domineering, because their attachment to mother makes them interpret any demand as a restriction of their freedom?"
"How many wives think their husbands are ineffective or stupid because they do not live up to a phantasy picture of a shining knight which they might have built up as children?"
The way out of our narcissism is to see people and things as they are—objectively.
And more, to learn to keep an objective picture of what we see free from that picture which reflects only ourselves—only our subjective fears and our personal passions.
We need to reflect on the reflection of others if we are to keep from losing sight of the world.

Liberals Scrap in Open

By DON COLLESTER
Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA — Two more Liberals, Mitchell Sharp and Andrew Thompson, are now fighting in public over the impact on Canada of new U.S. economic policies.

Mr. Thompson, the Ontario Liberal leader, had claimed that U.S. corporations have been draining money from Ontario to finance expansion in Europe.

Said Mr. Thompson: "Total borrowings for the past five months come to at least $300,000,000 in U.S. funds, much of it raised in Ontario."

Wednesday night, Mr. Sharp, the federal trade minister, answered Thompson:

"I think he has exaggerated the situation. There is no evidence of an extraordinary outflow of funds."

Mr. Sharp said this was the current situation, based on his weekly consultation with the Bank of Canada.

Mr. Thompson's statement stunned federal Liberals, who are already disturbed by the public battles within the party over new U.S. economic guidelines covering subsidiaries in Canada.

Quebec's health minister, Eric Kierans, was so angry about the guidelines that he sent a couple of outraged letters to the U.S. administration.

The Thompson "bomb" fed right into the hands of Tory leader Diefenbaker, who has been berating the Liberal government for taking Washington-made policies.

In the Commons, Mr. Diefenbaker asked the prime minister about the Thompson statement: "Is there any justification in that point of view, that Canada is a kind of economic bee in the way it is being treated?"

The speaker ruled the question out of order but earlier Mr. Pearson said he would look at what Thompson had said.

Outside the Commons, Mr. Sharp said: "This is all mixed up."

Asked about the $300,000,000 outflow, he replied: "This just isn't so."

In the first nine months of 1965, the net outflow was $62,000,000.

And in the final quarter (which covered most of the three-month period that Thompson had talked about), it was only $10,000,000.

These figures would also include routine purchase of foreign securities by Canadians.

Mr. Thompson, Mr. Sharp said, was "a bit confused" in his figures.

He believed that the $300,000,000 figure that Thompson had quoted was the worldwide figure covering the worldwide activities of U.S. subsidiaries.

Mr. Sharp said there is:

• No evidence that Canadian subsidiaries of U.S. companies have been "in the market, to an abnormal extent."

• No evidence that loans are being raised here for affiliates outside the country.

• No evidence that banks are lending contrary to the instructions of Bank of Canada governor Louis Rasminsky.

"The banks understand the situation and are co-operating," he said.

Mr. Sharp said he had guessed the source of Mr. Thompson's information and had gone straight to that

Mossler Defence Counsel

Judge Rules Out Mistrial Motion

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Defence counsel Percy Foreman charged Wednesday that two convict witnesses, Arthur Grimsley and Billy Frank Mulvey, had given false testimony in the Mossler murder trial and demanded a mistrial.

Foreman said the state has "undisputable proof" in its possession that perjury was committed by the two men and was suppressing it.

State attorney Richard E. Gerstein admitted he planned to recall Grimsley, a prisoner of an arrest in New Orleans.

Gerstein denied having any knowledge of perjury by Mulvey and the mistrial motion was denied by circuit Judge George Schulz.

Grimsley testified that Melvin Lane Powers offered him in 1962 enough money to buy two expensive cars to kill Jacques Mossler. Grimsley said he agreed to the proposition but was taken out of circulation by recall Grimsley, a prisoner of an arrest in New Orleans.

Stowaway Claims B.C. as Home

NEW YORK (CP)—The liner Queen Mary arrived in New York Wednesday evening 747 passengers and a 19-year-old stowaway who said he was from Trail, B.C.

He identified himself as Peter Jackson but had no passport or papers to substantiate his claim.

He said he stowed away on the Queen Mary when it left New York Dec. 14 and made the crossing to England undetected. He worked at odd jobs in England and then stowed away again on the Queen Mary when it left Southampton.

He was detected the day after the ship left Cherbourg, France, and was put in the ship's brig.

Hope Seen for Rhodesia

SALISBURY (AP) — Selwyn Lloyd, veteran British statesman on Commonwealth affairs, says it is possible "to arrive at a settlement which would permit Rhodesia to go forward."

He made the comment after speaking with hundreds of political leaders, businessmen, clergy, farmers and Negroes. Lloyd said he is taking back "certain ideas" which may be the basis for negotiations. However, when he was asked if he is optimistic, Lloyd said: "No. I think a solution will be difficult."

He said he had asked to see Joshua Nkomo and Rev. Abubakar Mphahlele, the two restricted Negro nationalist leaders, but was told the meeting could not be arranged. The main reason given was security, he said.

Mr. Lloyd has been studying the dispute between Britain and the British colony which proclaimed its independence Nov. 11.

But Lloyd said he had seen about 60 Negroes, including some lesser nationalists. Lloyd did not explain at an airport press conference why he felt negotiations would be so difficult. It is obvious, however, one important stumbling block is Prime Minister Smith's decision not to negotiate except as prime minister of an independent Rhodesia.

"I told everyone that the unilateral declaration of independence was wrong and that a majority indefinitely," Lloyd European minority could not said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has sold arms to both Israel and the Arab nations to help them meet "legitimate defence needs," the state department said in a policy statement made public Wednesday.

The statement was issued in response to the appeal by Senator Hugh Scott (Rep. Pa.) that restrictions on arms sales to Israel be lifted to preserve "the precarious peace in the Middle East."

Scott said in his request to President Johnson that Israel "must have arms to defend her security and deter attack by Arab states which have threatened to drive her into the sea."

The state department said the U.S. had provided Patton tanks to both Jordan and Israel and had sold the defensive Hawk missile to Israel.

Jailed Jokerster Refuses Food

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Canadian Dick Gregory was on a hunger strike Wednesday, but not his wife, Lillian.

The two were arrested Tuesday on charges of illegal fishing and went to jail rather than post $500 bail each.

Gregory, 33, said he would reject all food until his release.

'Like Poor Coaching Job'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Peter Stein, assistant director of the British Columbia John Howard Society, said Tuesday Canada's treatment of ex-convicts is like a poor football coaching job.

Mr. Stein told a service club audience that not enough former inmates are being given after-jail care.

He said it is like a football coach who spends all week training his team, giving chalk talks and explaining strategy, only to be absent on the day of the big game.

Mr. Stein said the federal government spends about $48,000,000 a year to house prisoners while the parole service gets only $714,000.

He called for day parole programs, where a prisoner works outside the jail but sleeps inside, and closer supervision of ex-convicts.

He said jails which keep convicts from all but limited contact with the outside world are needed for only a small hard-core group of convicts.

Guns Grace Hill

Two guns newly arrived from Vancouver Ordnance Depot and declared obsolete by the army are now resting at Fort Rodd Hill. Jack Rippengale inspects automatic loading device of 40-millimetre cannon while in background is 90-millimetre gun. Grating around muzzle of larger is for gunners to stand on when gun is in firing position. Both were located in Victoria-Esquamalt area during the Second World War and early 1950s. They will be in firing position when on public view.—(Robin Clarke)

Socreds Scored For Limiting Bed Subsidies

Pat McGeer (L., Point Grey) challenged the government Wednesday to "buy up" the province's private chronic-care hospitals and "put them to work."

MLA Hits 'Unequal' Liquor Law

The legislature's only native member said in the House Wednesday that liquor is an "iron curtain" between the Indian and progress. "We have fought time and time again for equality in liquor legislation," said Frank Calder (NDP, Atlin). "But I must say it has become an iron curtain. 'Don't ask me for the answer. Perhaps it is because we are caught in a booming economy with money available. But it seems as if all youth, not just our people, are caught in the same situation.'"

Unions Discuss Wage Talks

Six major West Coast unions, all of which start contract negotiations shortly, are to meet in Portland next week to plan co-ordination and co-operation in their agreement-seeking.

Members of the group are the International Woodworkers of America, Lumber and Sawmill Workers, Association of Western Pulp and Paper Workers, International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, Teamsters Union and the Western Conference of Printing Specialty Union.

In B.C., the IWA's agreement covering 25,000 persons and 135 companies expires in mid-June. Contracts affecting 7,500 pulp and paper workers and 2,500 longshoremen run out shortly afterwards.

The inter-union group has held meetings in the past. The one beginning Feb. 23 has as its specific topic: How each of the organizations can assist one another in contract negotiations and any subsequent action that any of the organizations takes to secure an agreement.

B.C. LIMPS ALONG
He pointed out that, since 1958, the federal government had increased its share of hospital costs from $12,700,000 to $36,000,000 a year while the provincial government's share had gone from $31,200,000 to $36,000,000.

"The federal government has trebled theirs while you are limping along at the same pace."

"Overwhelming evidence has built up over the years that the minister simply cannot solve the problem," he said.

"This isn't a profound problem at all. Just buy them up and put them to work."

"Let's open the 570 Club up to everyone in the province."

To Meet Finish Target

Road Job Needs Crash Program

The Stewart-Cassiar road in northwestern B.C. "will be a giant" but it won't be finished by its promised 1967 target date, Frank Calder (NDP-Atlin) told the legislature Wednesday.

Mr. Calder, speaking in the budget debate, said the road would open up one of the province's greatest mining fields.

"But the government will have to launch a crash program if it is to be finished in 1967," he said.

Premier Bennett earlier had promised the completion date and Mines Minister Brothers reiterated the pledge, in spite of what he called the federal government's "shameful" refusal to help.

"I'll eat my words by pitching my tent on the legislature lawn," he said, "but that road won't be finished in '67."

MAJOR HIGHWAY
It will be a major international highway linking Alaska, B.C., the Yukon and Northwest Territories. About 90 miles of the road, including major crossings of the Stikine and Bulkley Rivers, remains to be built.

Besides great future mining development, Atlin has "the greatest hydro power potential in the world," but if the government allows Alaska to develop its Rampart Dam first, it will be lost he said.

MAKE SURVEY
He called on the provincial government to "at least make a survey for a start."

He also asked the government to consider establishment of a provincial fisheries portfolio.

"Ottawa has been very weak regarding the protection of fisheries in this province," he said. "The 12-mile limit and licence limitations on commercial fishermen only result in exploitation on the high seas."

"We should claim the right to our fisheries the same as we claim the right to our offshore minerals," he said.

CAPITOL

Oh, Oh! Seventh Heaven It's Not

HALIFAX (CP) — 007 is being held in bond by the Nova Scotia registrar of motor vehicles.

They're license plates ending in the numerals 007 and owner David Mercer of Halifax can have them back when the registrar and police are satisfied "potentially dangerous equipment is removed from the car."

Police stopped Mercer, 30, on a city street Monday while he was driving his 1964 model car. It had a red light mounted in front. That bit cost him $20 and costs in court Tuesday.

What police found inside the car was more intriguing. The gadgetry was straight out of Bond.

To be sure, a lot of the systems were not operative but there was something like a telephone dial on the steering column. One number combination was designed to shoot out a liquid spray from pipes at the rear of the vehicle.

There was a public address

system under the hood hooked up to a dashboard record player or for broadcast from a two-way radio system.

There were extra-strength headlights, a 110-volt electricity system, and a shrill, antique horn.

Mercer, a telephone mechanic, said he intended the car for show and had planned to take it to exhibitions in the United States. He said he had planned extras such as bullet proof shields which could drop down over the tires, a spotlight in the trunk and even smoke throwers from the rear.

Authorities who inspected the vehicle said Mercer's workmanship "is of a high professional degree."

Pretty well all the gadgets with the exception of the two-way radio will have to go if Mercer is to get his plates back but he isn't perturbed.

He admits he likes designing and inventing and has his next project in mind now. It's a boat with an idea or two out of Thunderball, but this time he's going "to check with the people in charge first."

him, stop him and want to know why.

"The whole thing is becoming a bit of a nuisance," said Brooks.

"When I got the car there was no special significance attached to 007."

"It's just that 00 is Essex county's registration code and it was a pure coincidence that I got a 7 to go with it."

Brooks added that he has never read a James Bond novel or seen a James Bond movie and his car is an E-type Jaguar. Bond, special agent 007 in the Ian Fleming thrillers, drives an Aston Martin.

GOSFIELD, England (AP) — Bernard Brooks says he's not a spy, has never seen Russia, with love or without, and will the police please go away.

The trouble is his car number—007. Brooks says wherever he goes police chase

Stop Ferries? 'He's National Joke'

By BARRY JOHNSON
Highways Minister Gaglardi outlined his own plan for one of his favorite dreams Wednesday — a highway in a sunken tube from Point Grey to Gabriola Island.

"I've been talking about this for five or six years," he said. "We'll be able to do it some time, maybe 25 years from now."

At lunch Wednesday, Dr. Tom Morfe of Tamco Engineering Consultants told the minister it was "a good idea, worth looking into," Mr. Gaglardi said. He said his firm would "play around with the idea."

Mr. Gaglardi stressed that the engineering company was "playing around" on its own time and had not been engaged by the government to study the project.

He was commenting on a report from Ottawa that Tom Barnett (NDP, Comox-Alberni) had broached the subject of a causeway over the same route with Transport Minister Pickersgill.

Mr. Barnett said Mr. Pickersgill told him the federal government would set up a feasibility study if B.C. would promise to stop building ferries in the interim.

"And if Pickersgill said that, then he is a national joke," (See below.)

"How can we stop building ferries?" asked the volatile minister. "Are people supposed to get going 500 miles an hour and then leap across the ocean? Maybe we'll shoot them across in rockets."

He said he would be happy to quit building ferries when such a crossing was in existence.

"We are losing thousands of dollars a month on ferries," he said. "With a causeway like this, you build it, pay for it and that's it. With ferries you don't even leave a mark on the ocean."

B.C. may have the population to warrant building his dream tube "in about 25 years," he said.

The government hasn't made applications to Ottawa because "it's out of our reach."

The population of Prince Edward Island, he said, is "a mere bagatelle." But that province is getting its causeway to the mainland as a promise made at the time it entered Confederation.

Ruling Reversed

Court Seats NDP MLA

New Democrat MLA William Hartley will officially relieve Premier Bennett Monday of the responsibility of representing the constituency of Yale in the legislature.

Hartley

The B.C. Court of Appeal in Victoria Wednesday reversed a Supreme Court ruling made in January that Mr. Hartley's election Sept. 30, 1963, was void because of voting irregularities.

The soft-spoken MLA was jubilant at the news when reached at his home in Merritt. He said he felt the Appeal Court had given him a better hearing than was afforded earlier by the Supreme Court.

"WE CAN CARRY IT" Noting that during his absence from the legislature the government had brought in a bill which would enlarge the Yale riding to take in part of Lillooet on the north, Similkameen on the east and some of Kamloops, Dewdney and Chilliwack, Mr. Hartley said:

"I believe we can carry it, and we will carry the riding if we do the necessary legwork between now and election time."

The NDP victory over Socred candidate Irvine Corbett, a former MLA who had initiated the Supreme Court action against Mr. Hartley, was announced in the legislature by Gordon Dowding (NDP—Barnaby), who was Mr. Hartley's lawyer.

BENNETT 'GLAD' He advised Speaker William Murray that he had a copy of the reasons for judgement which were handed down earlier in the day.

Premier Bennett, who earlier had said he would look after the interests of Yale while the riding had no member in the House, told the legislature: "I am glad the seat has been represented correctly all the time." He also said he was glad he wouldn't have to represent it any more.

Grit Caucus Pushes for Pension Hike

Pearson in Squeeze

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson is under pressure that may soon be unbearable to raise the old-age pension.

The matter was discussed at the party caucus Wednesday and Mr. Pearson described his dilemma: It is a question of:

● If pensions should be raised across the board or just on the basis of need.

● And when such action should be taken.

Mr. Pearson was airing the subject to head off the emotional buildup among Liberal MPs coming back from their constituencies and reporting what old-age pensioners are asking them:

"Why won't you raise the pension?" The prime minister recommended all members of the caucus to read the report, just issued, of Senator David Croll's committee on aging.

This committee urges a guaranteed minimum income for all Canadians at $6 of $105 a month for single people and $185 for married couples.

Under this scheme, the government would pay the difference between these levels and actual income.

Mr. Pearson expressed great admiration for the report. The strategists in the party see a large black mark with the public in the anti-increase position they took in non-confidence votes last month.

The minority government scraped through two votes that

'No Peril to Buttle'

Mine to Dump 'Fine Tailings'

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Western Mines Ltd. wants to dump the fine tailings from its mine into Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park, a special legislative committee was told Wednesday.

C. M. Campbell, general manager of the mining company, said this material "may make the water a little murky but won't contaminate it," if it is piped to a proper depth in the lake.

He told the committee where his company would like to build a mining town inside the park, and said it was important for the committee to "set the ground rules" for mining operations in the park because other companies would probably make similar requests.

LYNX CLAIMS

"Proven ore reserves now exceed 2,000,000 tons with a gross value of over $100,000,000, and will keep the mine in operation something in excess of six years," said Mr. Campbell.

These reserves are in the Lynx claims, according to Dr. Douglas Campbell, a consulting geologist, who told the legislative committee that deposits "probably triple this reserve" are expected to be found when exploration work is carried out on the firm's Paramount claims.

20-YEAR-LIFE

The geologist said he expects the life of the mining operation will be "at least 20 years. It could be much more — we've barely scratched the surface."

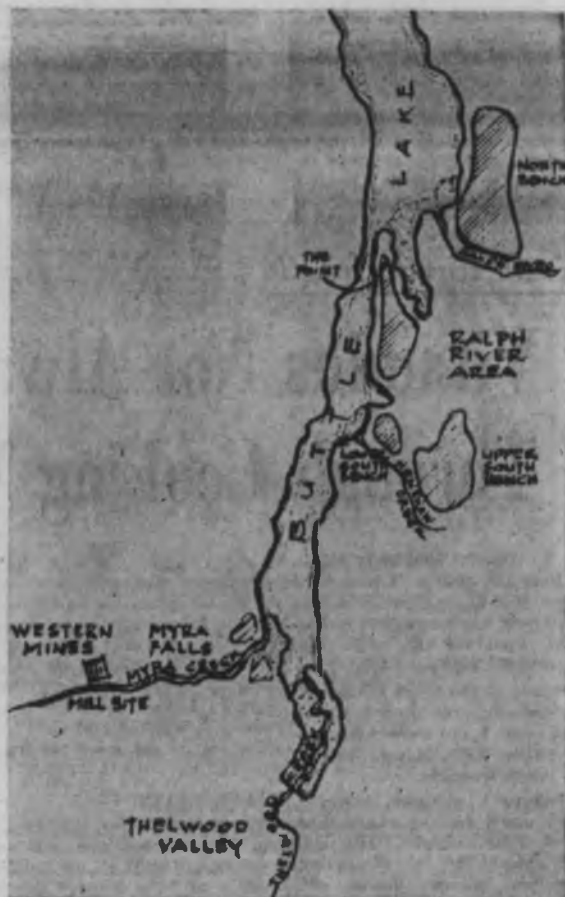

Company officials said they plan to finance the construction of "up to 200 homes" which would be rented to 250 permanent employees.

RAZE COMMUNITY

"There would be no permanence of tenure, maintenance would be a company responsibility," said the general manager, and when the mine is ultimately worked out the community could be razed and left for nature to take over.

Mr. Campbell said the company would need 150 acres for

Ottawa Will Listen To Any Request

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

If British Columbia asks for a causeway or tunnel connection for the Island and Mainland, it will be considered by Ottawa, according to Transport Minister Jack Pickersgill.

"We will certainly not turn a deaf ear," Mr. Pickersgill said in a telephone interview from his home in Ottawa Wednesday night.

Mr. Pickersgill said a causeway to connect island Newfoundland with mainland Newfoundland (Labrador) would probably have preference.

"This is because the island portion of Newfoundland has a much higher population than Vancouver Island," the transport minister explained.

"Until now, the federal government has given this matter (the Vancouver Island link) no consideration whatever," he said.

"That does not mean the matter will not be considered," he quickly added.

He said "I think the problems involved would be considerable. I am not an expert."

Thompson's Ward 'Tired of Being Beggar'

Royal Drop-Out Charges Bias

OTTAWA (CP) — A 17-year-old Ethiopian prince has become a drop-out from staid Ashbury College, charging discrimination and ill treatment.

The charges were denied Wednesday by both the school's headmaster and the prince's Canadian guardian, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson.

They spoke of the youth's desire to be treated like a prince, disciplinary difficulties, and troubles he had managing pocket money while all his school expenses were paid.

Prince Michael Makonnen, grandson of Emperor Haile Selassie, quit the school at Christmas after more than two years there, saying he was "tired of being a beggar."

Ashbury College is a private

boys' school, fashioned after England's most exclusive schools.

Ronald H. Perry the headmaster, said he was disturbed by Prince Michael's claims he was discriminated against as an African.

"Most upsetting," said Mr. Perry, "utterly fictitious and incorrect. We have had many colored students at this school. Discrimination is not in my vocabulary."

Mr. Thompson—who at one time was an educational adviser to the Ethiopian emperor—said the prince's claims were false.

The Social Credit leader had recommended Ashbury College for the prince and others in the royal family if they wanted a Canadian education.

The prince had "left Ottawa and my guardianship without

my authorization or other permission."

He did not return to Ashbury after the Christmas holiday, but lived with the parents of a fellow student in Montreal and went to a public school there until he was escorted by a palace official from Addis Ababa to a Swiss school.

"We treated him as we treated all other students," Mr. Perry said.

Fish from Polluted Water Sterilize Mink

PORT ALBERNI — Ferment in the Alberni over fallout is reflected in nation-wide concern over pollution, according to MP Tom Barnett.

Reporting back to his constituents, the New Democrat said while citizens across the country become more and more alarmed, senior governments are doing little.

He said Lake Erie is becoming a dead sea, with more and more area polluted to the point where no life can survive.

Mr. Barnett said the director of Great Lakes institute reported Lake Erie is so polluted "that mink fed fish from the lake become sterile."

Mr. Barnett said:

Reports become increasingly frequent of water contamination by both human and industrial sewage. Claims are being made that the Vancouver Island shellfish industry will become extinct in the foreseeable future unless drastic steps are taken to control and eliminate pollution.

"I have been told bluntly that on Neerouton Inlet, where the Port Alice pulp mill is located, it is a question of either no fish or no pulp mill.

Mr. Barnett said:

"In this location grass, trees and flowers are becoming a thing of the past as increasing quantities of noxious gases pollute the atmosphere. "In the Alberni Valley citizens march in silent vigil and sign petitions to protest the situation that has become increasingly intolerable to comfort and health. "Municipal authorities writing their hands in despair at the inadequacies of the provincial and federal legislative programs that might assist them in playing an effective role in protecting the community's citizens and their property. "Operating companies issue generic statements about what they are doing to reduce the level of pollution resulting from their industrial activities. "Perhaps even more important, the federal government could be inter-provincial, but the federal government could be issuing a ringing challenge to the provinces to co-operate in developing a pollution control code that could be more or less uniform across the country. "The Canadian Institute on Pollution Control issued a statement in Ottawa on water resources which says "If action is not taken they will be further adversely affected by the degree and pattern of population growth, industrial processing, commercial expansion, chemical usages and other technological advances. The fact that a major conference to talk some more about pollution is scheduled to take place in Montreal next November will come as cold comfort to people like the residents of the Alberni Valley living under the conditions that currently prevail.

Tailings No Threat To Lake — Mine Chief

its community, which would also need a hotel for transient accommodations, a restaurant to eliminate the need for a cook-house, possibly a community hall and a number of stores which would also cater to tourists and campers.

PENINSULA PROJECT

Western Mines would like to have either the north bench on the eastern side of Butte Lake just north of Ralph River, or the peninsula just south of Ralph River which could be developed like the Christie Point Apartments in the Gorge, in Victoria.

The gutted Thelwood Valley near the mine site, still scarred from a lightning forest fire in 1958, was offered by the government as a townsite but rejected by the company because "it is not a fit place for families to live," said Mr. Campbell.

ABSOLUTELY SHOCKING

"If a woman had to live there and look out of her window at the grey spikes and mud flats all day long, the mental attitude which would develop would be absolutely shocking," he told the committee.

All King of Vancouver, Mine Mill and Smelter Workers' Union national executive board member for western Canada, told the committee that while he had not seen the Thelwood Valley, he had been advised that "our men wouldn't live there even if a town is established there."

STRENUOUS OCCUPATION

Mining is an "extremely hazardous and strenuous" occupation and the miners don't want to travel long distance to their homes after coming up from the mine, he said.

The geologist also warned the committee of the danger of snow slides in the Thelwood Valley. Flying over the area, he said, "you can see at least four existing avalanches which come down this winter."

MARSH ON FLATS

"There is a spectacular avalanche 1½ miles south of the Thelwood burn," he said, adding that there is "no soil on the side of the Thelwood burn and marsh on the flats."

Committee member Harry McKay (L. Fernie), who comes from the coal mining region of southeastern British Columbia, stressed that a tight rein must be held to prevent the company from building a "shack town" for the miners.

STRICT CONTROL

"This business of shack towns cannot be taken lightly; we are spending millions to move them. You know where I live, and company towns have evil connotations... very strict control would have to be maintained to keep community interest up."

Committee chairman William

Speare (SC, Cariboo) asked the Western Mines general manager what the company plans to do with its tailings.

"We don't expect any water contamination from the mill would be the problem of the tailings," said Mr. Campbell.

PUMP INTO MINE

"We will largely pump our tailings back into the mine for fill, but some of this material is fine and doesn't drain easily — it's like quicksand."

"We are going to be shipping so much material that we won't have enough tailings to fill the holes, but there will be some fine material not suitable for bringing back into the mine," he said.

"We are considering putting these tailings into the lake, piping them to a depth below the feeding level of fish and the turbulence level... but this will be a minimum."

FISH UNHARMED

This system, said Mr. Campbell, had been used successfully in Kootenay Lake without harming the fish.

"Is there any danger of the fluid contaminating the lake?" asked Mr. McKay.

"It may be a little murky but it won't contaminate it. There is no danger at all. I couldn't tell you there is not going to be any murkiness," Mr. Campbell replied.

The mine manager said this system would be allowed under the company's existing park-use permit. He said an alternative to dumping it in the lake could be putting it in some of the nearby swamps.

Leo Nimsick (NDP-Cranbrook) asked us to see if the townsite would pollute the lake, but they didn't give the committee the job of finding out if the mine will pollute the lake—I think it was just to get somebody off the hook."

TOURIST AREA

Mr. Campbell predicted that when a 22-mile-long road, 24 feet wide, is built from the northern end of the lake to the mine, "it will convert this relatively wild area into what will be a high-density tourist area."

"We can expect thousands of tourists every year in that area," he said.

Western Mines is expected eventually to spend an excess of $1,000,000 on its 18-mile portion of this new road within the park boundary, while the provincial government will build a four-mile section of its outside the park.

10 TRIPS PER DAY

About 250 tons of concentrates are to be trucked along this new access road daily from the mine to Campbell River. "This will require 10 trips per day and is scheduled to begin in July."

A shipping terminal at Campbell River is expected to cost "in excess of $1,000,000" and a 4,500-horsepower hydro power plant which will cost an estimated $1,000,000 is now being built, which will draw its water supply from Tennen Lake, southwest of Butte Lake.

NO FISH IN LAKE

John Tisdale (SC, Saanich) wanted to know if people flew in to fish this lake. Mr. Campbell replied that there are no fish in the lake.

A tunnel already has been broken 30 feet below the surface of Tennen Lake, "we have installed the headworks and are now cutting the right-of-way for penstocks," the manager said.

In addition to the mine's power requirements, enough electricity could be ultimately be developed to supply the townsite, if it was located near the mine, said Mr. Campbell.

Squire Blasts Silence

By GORDON DODD

Labor was scolded on its home ground Wednesday night for not "raising cane" enough.

The rebuke was administered by New Democrat MLA John Squire, of Port Alberni, who was addressing Victoria Labor Council.

Premier Bennett's budget was something that labor ought to be "very critical about," he said. P11 Home — 3-32-2 Labors ...

COMPENSATION

And the Tysoe commission recommendations on workers' compensation? "I haven't seen one complaint from labor as an organized group," Mr. Squire cried.

He sometimes wondered just where the labor movement was heading in some fields.

Mr. Squire said he found it disturbing not to hear any criticism from labor on the budget speech.

Nanaimo Attempt Pair Jailed

NANAIMO—Gerald Terrance Morgan, 29, Nanaimo, was given a two-year jail sentence in the B.C. Penitentiary, and Trevor Dixon McLeod, 24, 18 months in Oakalla, Wednesday.

Last week the two men were found guilty of the attempted rape of a 15-year-old Ladysmith girl on a lonely logging road near Chemainus by an assize court jury.

In pronouncing sentence Mr. Justice David Verchere told Morgan he had played the greater part in the crime because he had enticed the girl to get back in the front seat of the car.

He said he wanted the men to serve their terms in separate institutions.

"This is a very serious offense which parliament has seen fit to punish with whipping if the circumstances warranted."

"I am aware from the evidence the offense was not accompanied by any shocking acts of brutality."

"Not all the force was exerted that could have been exerted," the judge said.

Prior to sentencing seven character witnesses were called by Vancouver lawyers Marshall Bray and Hugh McGivern on behalf of the two men.

They included Mrs. Marjorie Lavandusky from Ladysmith, who said she would allow McLeod into her house again, and permit him to take out one of her daughters.

Morgan's wife, Marilyn, said they were building a house south of Nanaimo, and they had a three year old son.

Bylaw Hiked by $100,000

Cowichan Recreation Vote Soon

NORTH COWICHAN—Composite recreation bylaw which will go to the voters in March has been boosted by $100,000.

Following advice of the recreation commission, North Cowichan municipality increased the bylaw to $700,000.

Of the total, $300,000 is for the Fuller's Lake arena, $300,000 for a future similar project in the southern area, and $100,000 is the municipalities share of a swimming pool.

Meeting Wednesday, council also approved school board budgets at Ladysmith and Cowichan.

Coun. Elaine Dobbins and Coun. Reginald Clegg voted against the school costs.

Coun. John Cannon said, "I am not happy about it, but I don't see any alternative."

The composite recreation bylaw will authorize borrowing of up to $700,000 during a five-year period starting July 15 this year.

Explaining the boost of the originally-proposed sum of $600,000 by another $100,000, Reeve Donald Morton said, "We committed ourselves publicly to swimming pool."

A community swimming pool was recommended by the Duncan Rotary Club a considerable time ago and the club pledged to pay the initial $25,000 to the construction.

Council will investigate requests for the blacktopping of Khenipsen Road from five residents in that area.

Three letters were a reply to an unusual request put to council 14 days ago not to pave that road so the "charming character" could be maintained.

Two members of Duncan Teen Town and their adult advisor Jim Quaffe left the council chamber with the promise council will consider a request to provide Teen Town with a piece of land for a pre-fab hall proposed by the young people.

Coun. Dennis Hogan and Coun. Cannon were asked to meet with a Teen Town committee to discuss the feasibility of acquiring a piece of land.

Workers Needed For Fair

NANAIMO—There's a chance for a five-day Vancouver Island Exhibition this year if enough volunteers come forward, Cyril Edgington, fair president, said Wednesday.

The fair will be holding its annual meeting March 8 and he urged anybody with ideas and imagination to turn out.

"At the moment we have only 14 workers," he said. Dates for the VIK have been set for August 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20.

Ladysmith to Englishman's River.

Thirty animals were taken to the veterinarian hospital and 195 animals were looked after because of neglect or abandonment on the part of their owners.

In the city pound 115 dogs were impounded, he said.

Guest speakers were Dr. John Sheehan, a local veterinarian, and Mrs. Violet Cowie of Victoria, constitution chairman of B.C. SPCA.

Dr. Sheehan commended the local branch for its system for its adopted animals, which includes a free inspection at the veterinarian hospital.

The general public was urged by Mrs. Cowie to send postcards to the prime minister asking for new legislation for seal hunting.

She also called for a new study to be made of the uses animals are put to in medical, pharmaceutical and industrial research.

New officers elected were Richard Bing, president; Clayton Mann, first vice-president; Mrs. Robert Creighton and Mrs. Nigel Scott, secretaries; Mrs. Les McGraw, treasurer; with Dr. Sheehan, and Ralph Hutchinson as directors.

But there is a solution, Mr. Seward said, one which he hopes will be looked into by city fathers: Federal urban renewal scheme, which makes funds available for rejuvenation of blighted areas.

A complete sweep of some of the older areas, and subsequent erection of attractive, well-managed low-cost housing units is perhaps the answer, the building inspector feels.

"It would eliminate a lot of the problems, like having to evict an elderly Chinese from a shack where an ordinary stove pipe through the roof had scorched the roof for two feet around it. I don't know why it hasn't burst into flames."

"And then there was a couple living in a garage without plumbing, carrying their water from a standpipe, I didn't dare ask what they did with soap and garbage."

The lack of suitable housing for low-income families becomes even more noticeable in a busy city, bustling with new homes in the $20,000 bracket, with luxurious balconied apartments springing up.

According to Mr. Seward, the excellent close-to-town location of some of the dilapidated areas, with attractive views of the canal and the mountains beyond, is ideal for low-cost housing sites, where tenants with low incomes would feel a sense of pride and responsibility in attractive healthful surroundings.

It's not one law for the rich and another for the poor in the building inspector's books.

Landlords in less desirable areas have come under his fire, but so have downtown businessmen.

Dark passageways between buildings on Third Avenue now boast attractive boardings that eliminate the possibility of undesirable persons using them for what the police tactfully call "illicit purposes."

Several counselling evenings have been held at Queen Margaret's School, with Strathcona Lodge students invited, when the girls had a chance to talk with someone who knew from experience the opportunities open to them.

Shawnigan Lake School have asked Mrs. Mitchell to organize a career counselling evening for the boys this spring.

At Brentwood College a career workshop will be held Friday, following a successful one last year.

Victoria Sales and Marketing Executive Club is sending four experts to Mill Bay and a member of Highway Minister Gagliardi's staff will be on hand.

Rot, Blight Doomed

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—There'll be a sudden end to properties with Queen Ann fronts and Mary Ann backs if the Twin Cities new building inspector has his way.

Bill Deward, recently appointed as the Twin Cities first full-time building inspector, faced "a challenge" when he arrived on the job seven weeks ago.

"I've been called a wrecker, not a builder," the stocky inspector admitted cheerfully.

"But so far, where buildings have actually been condemned, new and better buildings are already planned to replace them."

Two large warehouses on Kingsway came under the stern eye of both Mr. Seward and Fire Chief Maurice Smith recently. One was unused, the other being offered for sale or rent.

Inspection showed a multitude of faults, from a floor that gave way under the fire chief's feet, to a sewer vent that fed under the building, giving rise to obnoxious, and combustible sewer gas.

A gas pump, situated inside one building raised the fire chief's eyebrows. Both buildings were finally condemned since the cost of bringing them up to today's building standards was too great.

Yet one is already scheduled to be replaced by a new $30,000 building. As soon as the second one is demolished, the owners are said to have a similar proposal from another company.

One such group of buildings was condemned at Monday night's council meeting, after both the fire chief and the building inspector listed faults that included fire as well as health hazards. A chimney that appeared to be holding up the building, three stoves or heaters on one chimney, some with pipes running through plywood partitions, inadequate plumbing, rotten foundations, and many more costly defects added up to a situation hopeless to repair.

"We realise people must have somewhere to live," said Mr. Seward, "and low-cost housing in the Alberni Valley is nonexistent."

But there is a solution, Mr. Seward said, one which he hopes will be looked into by city fathers: Federal urban renewal scheme, which makes funds available for rejuvenation of blighted areas.

Lawyer, Ron McIsaac said "I like that 30-mile stretch of water between the Island and the Mainland. I don't want a causeway for commuters."

"I know it means more people to share it with," McIsaac said.

"I've always found the ferry to be adequate, and this could be improved considerably if it ran between Gabriola Island and the Mainland; it would mean the same number of ferries in half the time," Mr. Tait said.

new and better buildings are already planned to replace them."

Two large warehouses on Kingsway came under the stern eye of both Mr. Seward and Fire Chief Maurice Smith recently. One was unused, the other being offered for sale or rent.

Inspection showed a multitude of faults, from a floor that gave way under the fire chief's feet, to a sewer vent that fed under the building, giving rise to obnoxious, and combustible sewer gas.

A gas pump, situated inside one building raised the fire chief's eyebrows. Both buildings were finally condemned since the cost of bringing them up to today's building standards was too great.

Yet one is already scheduled to be replaced by a new $30,000 building. As soon as the second one is demolished, the owners are said to have a similar proposal from another company.

One such group of buildings was condemned at Monday night's council meeting, after both the fire chief and the building inspector listed faults that included fire as well as health hazards. A chimney that appeared to be holding up the building, three stoves or heaters on one chimney, some with pipes running through plywood partitions, inadequate plumbing, rotten foundations, and many more costly defects added up to a situation hopeless to repair.

"We realise people must have somewhere to live," said Mr. Seward, "and low-cost housing in the Alberni Valley is nonexistent."

But there is a solution, Mr. Seward said, one which he hopes will be looked into by city fathers: Federal urban renewal scheme, which makes funds available for rejuvenation of blighted areas.

A complete sweep of some of the older areas, and subsequent erection of attractive, well-managed low-cost housing units is perhaps the answer, the building inspector feels.

"It would eliminate a lot of the problems, like having to evict an elderly Chinese from a shack where an ordinary stove pipe through the roof had scorched the roof for two feet around it. I don't know why it hasn't burst into flames."

"And then there was a couple living in a garage without plumbing, carrying their water from a standpipe, I didn't dare ask what they did with soap and garbage."

Gee, Mr. Hees, I'd sure like to help you out, but I can't.

It's not the expense or anything. I've got the stamp right here. But writing letters to protest U.S. takeover of Canadian hockey is like joining the Confederate army. The battle was over years ago.

It's certainly nice to know the politicians care about us hockey fans. We're in trouble, all right. The whole game of hockey is going to crumble and die if we let it fall into the hands of the nasty old Americans.

I've just got one teeny little question. How do we keep them from taking something they've controlled for 40 years?

They've won, Mr. Hees. If the question of hockey nationalism is based only on number of teams, they won in 1926, when the NHL expanded to a 10-team league. Four of those teams were Canadian, six American, and Canada has never caught up.

Oh, it's worse now, of course. Six new American franchises give the U.S. a 16-2 edge in teams. But if you'll pardon me for saying so, sir, it took a heck of a time for you guys to find out we were losing.

Born All-Canadian

Maybe you should study a little history.

If you do, you'll find that the NHL was formed in 1917, and that first season there were four teams: Montreal Canadiens, Montreal Wanderers, Ottawa and Toronto Arenas. They played a 22-game schedule.

It was all Canadian then, sir. You'd have been proud. But in 1924 those Yanks started hearing.

Boston Bruins were the first U.S. team in and now, after various franchise shifts, the league roster read Hamilton Tigers, Montreal Canadiens, Montreal Maroons, Ottawa, Toronto St. Patricks—and the Bruins.

That was where the politicians should have stepped in, sir. We'd have stopped the bouncers then. Two years later, it was too late.

In 1925 the Hamilton franchise was sold to New York Americans for $75,000 (Unheard of price, that, but you know these Americans: filthy rich), and Pittsburgh Pirates got a franchise. Now there were seven clubs, four Canadian, three American.

The next year in came New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks, and Detroit Cougars (later the Red Wings). And now it was a league of two five-team divisions, but six U.S. teams to four Canadian. (That was the year, incidentally, that the Stanley Cup, originally put up in 1893 for the AMATEUR championship of Canadian hockey, was turned over to the NHL.)

From there, it was just a matter of whittling away at the Canadian teams. Ottawa was out, back in, and out again, the franchise shifted to St. Louis. Pittsburgh's franchise went to Philadelphia, where it folded.

Pay in Yankee Dollars

St. Louis was gone in 1935, the Maroons in 1938, the New York (by then Brooklyn) Americans in 1942, and there were were—right where we are today—with teams in Montreal, Toronto, Detroit, Chicago, New York and Boston.

Of course, when expansion comes in 1967-68, the spread will be a little overwhelming. Ten teams against two is a bit much, isn't it?

But the players on those 12 teams will still be 99 per cent Canadian, and I don't think it will be too much of a blow for those on U.S. teams to collect their pay in American currency.

No, Mr. Hees. I don't like it either. But hockey is a business and the men who run it (Americans, most of them) are putting their franchises where the money is.

Yes, Vancouver got a dirty deal. But it didn't figure to get a franchise anyway, because there is no extra TV exposure to be gained by it. And TV money is the key to the whole expansion.

For a few years at least, Vancouver will have to be content with staying in the WHL, which now stands for Western Hockey Leftovers.

As to Canada losing its national game—well, the Americans aren't the only ones beating us at our own game.

In 10 years European and Russian teams will be as good as any in Canada or the United States, and it won't be a disaster then any more than it is now.

We invented the game; we didn't patent it.

Ex-Wing Boston Hero

Martin Ruins Old Mates

Detroit Red Wings didn't think much of Pit Martin when they sent him to the minors. Now he's back in the National Hockey League, and they like him even less.

Martin, traded to Boston to the Wings could get Parker MacDonald, scored three goals and set up the winner last night.

Stewart's winner at 14:49 of the final period, when Boston got the last three goals.

It was the first win over the Wings for Boston since Feb. 4, 1965. Since then the Wings had 14 wins and a tie until last night.

Martin, who had been in the Wings since 1961, scored twice and Bob Pulford put the puck in the empty net in the final seconds for the Maple Leafs.

Paul Andre, leading the Central Pro League in scoring before he was called up from Minnesota, scored once and drew an assist on Earl Ingarfield's goal in his NHL debut.

Leafs Lose Another

Oh, Hurry Back Millie, Freddie!

LOS ANGELES (Special)—Victoria Maple Leafs and Los Angeles Blades are streaking through the Western Hockey League—in opposite directions.

The Blades, who beat the Leafs, 6-5, here Wednesday night, have a three-game win streak for the first time this season and they've won five of played six games, lost five and tied one.

They play in San Francisco against the Seals Friday, then don't play again until next Wednesday, when they are at home to Seattle Totems. Marcetta and Hucal are supposed to be back for that one.

Last night's game was long and rugged, delayed 20 minutes by an injury to Marcel Pelletier in the first period and another 10 in the third by one of the season's better fights.

It came at 14:47, with Blades leading, 6-3.

Blades' Bobby Schmautz and Bill Shvetz of Victoria had been feuding all night, and Shvetz checked him into the boards.

Both players fell to the ice, and Blades' Marc Bouleau pounced on Shvetz.

That brought Aut Erickson and John Slevator of Leafs into it, along with Bobby Orban and Ray LaRue of the Blades. When it was over, Shvetz and Slevator had minors and majors, LaRue and Orban majors, Bouleau two minors and Erickson one.

MADE IT CLOSE

They played four a side the rest of the way, and Lou Jankowski made it close with two goals, his 24th and 25th of the season. The first came on a breakaway pass from Larry Keenan, the second directly off a face-off to the left of Jack Norris.

Norris came into a scoreless game when Pelletier suffered pulled ligaments in his left knee.

HEBENTON SCORES

Blades led, 3-1, at the end of the first period, getting goals from Willie O'Ree and linemate Jim Board after Andy Heberton had put Leafs ahead with his 24th of the season.

In the second period, Camille Bedard got his first of the season on a screened shot, Heberton got it back, Bouleau scored for the Blades and Claude LaRue beat Norris with Leafs playing shorthanded.

Schmautz and Johnson scored for Blades in the third just before the brawl.

Seals Rout Aces

SAN FRANCISCO—San Francisco Seals, who scored only 12 goals while losing all six games on a tour through the American Hockey League, took out their frustration on Quebec Aces, runaway leaders of the Eastern Division of the AHL, by running up a 13-5 score here Wednesday night.

The outburst, easily the largest of the season for the Seals, ended the club's longest-ever losing streak in great style. But only 3,119 fans were on hand to watch the Seals gam their second win in 10 interlocking games.

RACING NEWS ON PAGE 42

The Western Hockey League trailers got away quickly with George Swarbrick scoring after only 21 seconds and Michel Harvey connecting at 2:17.

Aces, who opened their WHL tour with a 5-3 win in Seattle Sunday and then lost, 2-5, in Vancouver Tuesday, got a goal from Terry Gray at 2:45, but it was the last time they threatened as they lost two in a row for the first time this season.

BIG BATTLE

The Seals replied with goals at 4:13 and 4:57, had a 5-1 lead at the end of the second period and a 7-3 bulge for the last 20 minutes.

Swarbrick, Tom Thurlby and Gerry Brisson each scored twice for the winners with Wayne Connolly picking up the most points by scoring once and assisting three times.

War Plans Queried By Group

The Victoria Committee to End the War in Viet Nam has sent a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson requesting a public investigation of plans to recruit Canadians to fight in Viet Nam.

The group also wanted to know who was financing the campaign, where the plan originated and "how is the American Consulate involved."

Strike End Demanded

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI) — Provisional president Hector Garcia-Godoy Wednesday night denied reports he was planning to resign and demanded an end of the general strike that has cost the national economy an estimated $5,000,000 in the past seven days.

In a national television broadcast, Garcia-Godoy said it was his "responsibility" to stay in office until next June, when national elections are scheduled. "I will not give in to anyone else," he said, after rumors had circulated of an imminent crisis in the government.

GIRL SHOT

The death of a 15-year-old girl, shot three times in the chest, brought to 24 the total number of persons killed since the current wave of violence erupted. The girl was hit when police fired over the heads of a group of menacing civilians.

Two hours before Garcia-Godoy made his address, a group of some 80 Dominican businessmen petitioned the American government to investigate the policies of the president, claiming the provisional government was leading the country to the brink of Communism.

ECONOMY FROZEN

Garcia-Godoy demanded all government workers return to their jobs Thursday and exhorted the striking unions to call off the walkout that has frozen almost all economic and government activity in Santo Domingo and much of the country.

The president said he was again ordering former air force chief Col. Juan de los Santos Cespedes and former army Col. Jacinto Martinez Arana to accept his decree and take posts assigned them in Israel and Argentina.

These two officers are the only key officials remaining in the country who were ordered to foreign posts by the president Jan. 6.

The general strike erupted in protest to the national police opening fire on a leftist student demonstration before the national palace and quickly developed into a demand for the departure of the two military men.

Booby-Trapped Valentine Blasts Girl in Foot

Argentina Visited By Navy

BUENOS AIRES (Reuters) — Eight ships of the Royal Canadian Navy arrived in Argentina Wednesday for a goodwill visit.

Under the command of Commodore J. C. O'Brien, the six destroyers and two frigates planned to remain off Buenos Aires until Monday when they will continue their cruise of South Atlantic waters.

Meanwhile, the Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure and submarine Grilse arrived in Montevideo, Uruguay Wednesday.

Some 1,000 Uruguayan orphans will be given a party aboard the Bonaventure.

He was identified as Hollis Victor Robinson, a former boy friend of the sister of the girl who was shot.

Patricia Adams, 13, was hit in the foot by a shotgun charge when she opened a Valentine package intended for her older sister. Hospital attendants said the blast grazed the top of her left foot and broke no bones. She was not believed hurt seriously.

Detectives said that a Valentine note attached to a black, rectangular-shaped brief case was addressed to Patricia's 17-year-old sister, Nancy.

But when Nancy saw the case, the officers said, she remembered a boy had told Patricia he was going to give her a delayed Valentine present.

Instead of reading the note and seeing her name, Nancy called to her sister: "Patricia, here is your Valentine."

The detectives said Patricia opened the brief case and the movement triggered a sawed-off shotgun.

Crime Victim Aid Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police Chief Ralph Booth said Wednesday the war on crime can be successfully fought only if crime victims are compensated for their injuries.

The police chief said he favors any legislation authorizing establishment of a board — similar to the Workmen's Compensation Board — having the power to compensate victims of criminal activity.

"We are spending millions of dollars on rehabilitating criminals but nothing is being done for their victims," Chief Booth said.

"The police know only too well that their success in fighting crime depends upon the cooperation of the public."

He said many persons are reluctant to aid policemen in difficulty because of personal danger and the lack of compensation.

"So often when citizens do help police officers in trouble and are injured as a result of helping the police, they have no way of recovering damages for injuries."

"It is frustrating to think that all the police can do is send a letter of thanks to citizens in such an instance."

Consultants 'Playing with Idea'

Gaglardi Sees Sea Tube — by 1990

By BARRY JOHNSON
Highways Minister Gaglardi outlined his own plan for one of his favorite dreams Wednesday — a highway in a sunken tube from Point Grey to Gabriola Island.

"I've been talking about this for five or six years," he said. "We'll be able to do it sometime, maybe 25 years from now."

At lunch Wednesday, Dr. Tom Monte of Tanco Engineering Consultants told the minister it was "a good idea, worth looking into," Mr. Gaglardi said. He said his firm would "play around with the idea."

Mr. Gaglardi stressed that the engineering company was "playing around" on its own time and had not been engaged by the government to study the project.

He was commenting on a report from Ottawa that Tom Barnett (NDP, Comox-Alberni) had broached the subject of a causeway over the same route with Transport Minister Pickersgill. Mr. Barnett said Mr. Pickersgill told him the federal government would set up a feasibility study if B.C. would promise to stop building ferries in the interim.

Said Mr. Gaglardi: "Barnett is just looking for headlines."

"And if Pickersgill said that, then he is a national joke," (See below.)

"How can we stop building ferries?" asked the volatile minister. "Are people supposed to get going 500 miles an hour and then leap across the ocean? Maybe we'll shoot them across in rockets."

He said he would be happy to quit building ferries when such a crossing was in existence.

"We are losing thousands of dollars a month on ferries," he said. "With a causeway like this, you build it, pay for it and that's it. With ferries you don't even leave a mark on the ocean."

B.C. may have the population to warrant building his dream tube "in about 25 years," he said. The government hasn't made applications to Ottawa because "it's out of our reach."

The population of Prince Edward Island, he said, is "a mere bagatelle." But that province is getting its causeway to the mainland as a promise made at the time it entered Confederation.

Mr. Gaglardi illustrated the tube on the back of a coffee cheque in the legislature dining room.

Sections of the tube weighing "maybe 100 tons each" would be sunk to a depth of 60 below the surface of the water and anchored there by non-corrosive cables. Positive buoyancy of the tube would exert a steady upward pressure on the cables even when the tube was fully loaded with vehicles. This would hold it stationary.

Ruling Reversed

Court Seats NDP MLA

New Democrat MLA William Hartley will officially relieve Premier Bennett Monday of the responsibility of representing the constituency of Yale in the legislature.

Hartley

The B.C. Court of Appeal in Victoria Wednesday reversed a Supreme Court ruling made in January that Mr. Hartley's election Sept. 30, 1963, was void because of voting irregularities.

The soft-spoken MLA was jubilant at the news when reached at his home in Merritt. He said he felt the Appeal Court had given him a better hearing than was afforded earlier by the Supreme Court.

'WE CAN CARRY IT'

Noting that during his absence from the legislature the government had brought in a bill which would enlarge the Yale riding to take in part of Lillooet on the north, Similkameen on the east and some of Kamloops, Dewdney and Chilliwack, Mr. Hartley said:

"I believe we can carry it, and we will carry the riding if we do the necessary legwork between now and election time."

Grit Caucus Pushes for Pension Hike

Pearson in Squeeze

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson is under pressure, that may soon be unbearable, to raise the old-age pension.

The matter was discussed at the party caucus Wednesday and Mr. Pearson described his dilemma: It is a question of:

- If pensions should be raised on the basis of need.
- And when such action should be taken.

Mr. Pearson was airing the subject to head off the emotional buildup among Liberal MPs coming back from their constituencies and reporting what old-age pensioners are asking them:

"Why won't you raise the pension?"

The prime minister recommended all members of the caucus to read the report, just issued, of Senator David Croll's committee on aging.

This committee urges a guaranteed minimum income for all Canadians at 65 of $105 a month for single people and $185 for married couples.

Under this scheme, the government would pay the difference between these levels and actual income.

Mr. Pearson expressed great admiration for the report.

The strategists in the party see a large black mark with the public in the anti-increase position they took in non-confidence votes last month.

The minority government scraped through two votes that

If Mine Dumps Into Buttle

'Murky Water But No Peril'

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Western Mines Ltd. wants to dump the fine tailings from its mine into Buttle Lake in Strathcona Park, a special legislative committee was told Wednesday.

C. M. Campbell, general manager of the mining company, said this material "may make the water a little murky but won't contaminate it," if it is piped to a proper depth in the lake.

He told the committee where his company would like to build a mining town inside the park, and said it was important for the committee to "set the ground rules" for mining operations in the park because other companies would probably make similar requests.

LYNX CLAIMS

"Proven ore reserves now exceed 2,000,000 tons with a gross value of over $100,000,000, and will keep the mine in operation something in excess of six years," said Mr. Campbell.

These reserves are in the Lynx claims, according to Dr. Douglas Campbell, a consulting geologist, who told the legislative committee that deposits "probably triple this reserve" are expected to be found when exploration work is carried out on the firm's Paramount claims.

30-YEAR-LIFE

The geologist said he expects the life of the mining operation will be "at least 30 years. It could be much more — we've barely scratched the surface."

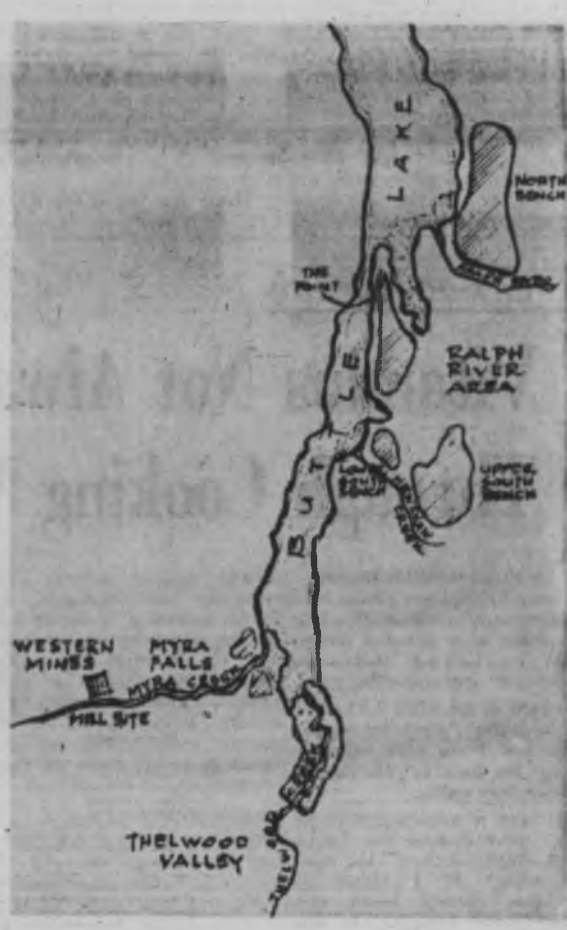

Company officials said they plan to finance the construction of "up to 200 homes" which would be rented to 250 permanent employees.

BAZE COMMUNITY

"There would be no permanence of tenure, maintenance would be a company responsibility," said the general manager, and when the mine is ultimately worked out the community could be razed and left for nature to take over.

Mr. Campbell said the company would need 180 acres for

Ottawa Will Listen To Any Request

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

If British Columbia asks for a causeway or tunnel connection for the Island and Mainland, it will be considered by Ottawa, according to Transport Minister Jack Pickersgill.

"We will certainly not turn a deaf ear," Mr. Pickersgill said in a telephone interview from his home in Ottawa Wednesday night.

Mr. Pickersgill said a causeway to connect Island Newfoundland with mainland Newfoundland (Labrador) would probably have preference.

"This is because the island portion of Newfoundland has a much higher population than Vancouver Island," the transport minister explained.

"Until now, the federal government has given this matter (the Vancouver Island link) no consideration whatever," he said.

"That does not mean the matter will not be considered," he quickly added.

He said "I think the problems involved would be considerable. I am not an expert."

"But it is my understanding that Georgia Strait is very deep in some places. I think this would cause difficulties."

He said there is no doubt if the provincial government wanted Ottawa to consider the matter, the matter would be considered.

He said this might include a joint study.

Thompson's Ward 'Tired of Being Beggar'

Royal Drop-Out Charges Bias

OTTAWA (CP) — A 17-year-old Ethiopian prince has become a drop-out from staid Ashbury College, charging discrimination and ill treatment.

The charges were denied Wednesday by both the school's headmaster and the prince's Canadian guardian, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson.

They spoke of the youth's desire to be treated like a prince, disciplinary difficulties, and troubles he had managing pocket money while all his school expenses were paid.

Prince Michael Makonnen, grandson of Emperor Haile Selassie, quit the school at Christmas after more than two years there, saying he was "tired of being a beggar."

Ashbury College is a private

boys' school, fashioned after England's most exclusive schools.

Ronald H. Perry the headmaster, said he was disturbed by Prince Michael's claims he was discriminated against as an African.

"Most upsetting," said Mr. Perry. "Utterly fictitious and incorrect. We have had many colored students at this school. Discrimination is not in my vocabulary."

Mr. Thompson—who at one time was an educational adviser to the Ethiopian emperor—said the prince's claims were false.

The Social Credit leader had recommended Ashbury College for the prince and others in the royal family if they wanted a Canadian education.

The prince had "left Ottawa and my guardianship without

my authorization or other permission."

He did not return to Ashbury after the Christmas holiday, but lived with the parents of a fellow student in Montreal and went to a public school there until he was escorted by a palace official from Addis Ababa to a Swiss school.

"We treated him as we treated all other students," Mr. Perry said.
